AIR WAR ON BRITAIN STARTS

The Ballyhoo

Wendell Willkie cheerfully acknowledges ovation.

Senator Vandenberg and family arrive in happy mood.

Thomas E. Dewey receives cheers at his headquarters.

Nobody knows who'll be nominated at the Republican convention in Philadelphia but here are three of the hopefuls, shown on the scene. Each thinks he has a pretty good chance, and you can't find a frown of worry or doubt on the faces of any of them.

Draft Plank to Curb War Aid

Subcommittee Puts Teeth Into Landon-Approved Statement On Republican Attitude.

BULLETIN

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Chairman Herbert K. Hyde announced today that the resolutions committee would be unable to complete its work on the party platform in time for scheduled presentation to the Republican national convention tonight. Hyde said the committee hoped it would be ready by tomorrow noon.

(By International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA—A new non-intervention plank, which would forbid any allied aid "inconsistent with requirements of national defense," was written into the tentative Republican platform today by an isolationist majority on the drafting subcommittee.

Bowing to threats of a fight on the convention floor, the subcommittee approved the following plank on the issue of aid to the Allies:

"We favor the extension of aid to all peoples fighting for liberty or whose liberty is threatened, if such aid shall not be in violation of international law or inconsistent with requirements of national defense in this country."

Even this plank failed to please all the isolationists. C. Wayland Brooks, of the Illinois delegation, was charged with drafting a still stronger anti-war plank for submission to the subcommittee during the day.

On instructions from the Illinois delegation, Brooks confronted the sub-committee with a demand that the Republican party take the strongest possible stand against involvement in war.

The Allied-aid plank, conditioned on requirements for America's national defense, was substituted for an earlier draft which had been endorsed by another group headed by Alf M. Landon. The earlier draft read merely:

"We favor aid to oppressed peo-

Uruguay Cheers News Second U. S. Warship's on Way

MONTEVIDEO —(AP)—. The 10,000-ton U. S. cruiser Quincy stayed overtime in Montevideo harbor today and anxious Uruguay, investigating possibility of a Nazi-planned revolt, cheered the news tht a second U. S. warship is on the way.

Orders from Washington to keep the Quincy here and word that the seventh squadron flagship Wichita will arrive Saturday from Rio De Janeiro came within a few hours after the chamber of deputies acted in secret session last night to stamp out subversive activities.

Three other units of the U. S. warfleet, the battleships Arkansas, Texas and New York, arrived last night at La Guaira, the port for Caracas, Venezuela. They were reported to be on a training cruise, with a large party of midshipmen aboard.

Observers in Montevideo interpreted the presence of the Quincy and expected arrival of the Wichita as signs that the United States would back up the government in whatever safeguards are adopted.

Taft Gains Strength at GOP Convention

STOP WILLKIE DRIVE HELPS OHIO SENATOR

Weakness Reported In Bloc For Dewey, Still Rated as First Ballot Leader:

MARTIN HITS ABSOLUTISM

Calls New Deal 'Seven Year Trend Toward One-Man Rule, National Bankruptcy.'

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

CONVENTION HALL, Philadelphia—Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio moved into challenging position today as the 1940 Republican national convention convened for its third session.

But Thomas E Dewey of New York still held the lead in first roll call vote pledges and Wendell L Willkie jitters spread in the camps of all opponents as he personally led new delegate-snatching raids

This morning's convention event was the address of Permanent Chairman Jopseh W. Martin of Massachusetts, picking up the keynote theme of Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota that New Deal neglect and fumbling has imperilled the United States at home and abroad.

Taft's move to the pole position was sparked by two developments.

One was word that signs of weakness had appeared in the strong Dewey bloc of delegates, still rated as the biggest first ballot group of any candidate. The other was spread of the "Stop Willkie" drive among ranks of the party's stalwarts, particularly old-line leaders and members of congress.

Willkie breakfasted today with delegates of his home state of Indiana. He told them that "some people might have the jitters" but he was feeling fine. He claimed he would have votes from California, Utah, Wyoming and other western strongholds.

He planned to spend the day receiving delegates from Illinois, Nebraska, Oklahoma, California, Michigan, Idaho, South Carolina, Nevada, Wyoming, Oregon, South Dakota, North Dakota and Florida.

As Chairman Martin took office today, he summoned his party to check the drift toward absolutism at home and strengthen American defenses against threats to her liberty from abroad.

Martin, Republican leader of the house, declared that:

"Eyes that are clear, hearts that are fearless, minds that are

YOU'LL PAY!

Roosevelt Signs Four Billion Tax Bill for U. S. Defense.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt signed into law today a $4,692,500,000 tax bill to pay for the huge national defense appropriations of the recent congressional session.

Dipping into the pockets of an estimated 2,000,000 additional income tax payers for the first time, and boosting existing taxes on nearly everything but chewing tobacco, the measure was designed to raise the $4,702,500,000 over 5 years—$715,300,000 in the fiscal year beginning July 1, and $994,300,000 in each of the following four years.

These were officially-calculated totals, somewhat lower than the billion-dollar plus figures used in Capitol Hill debate.

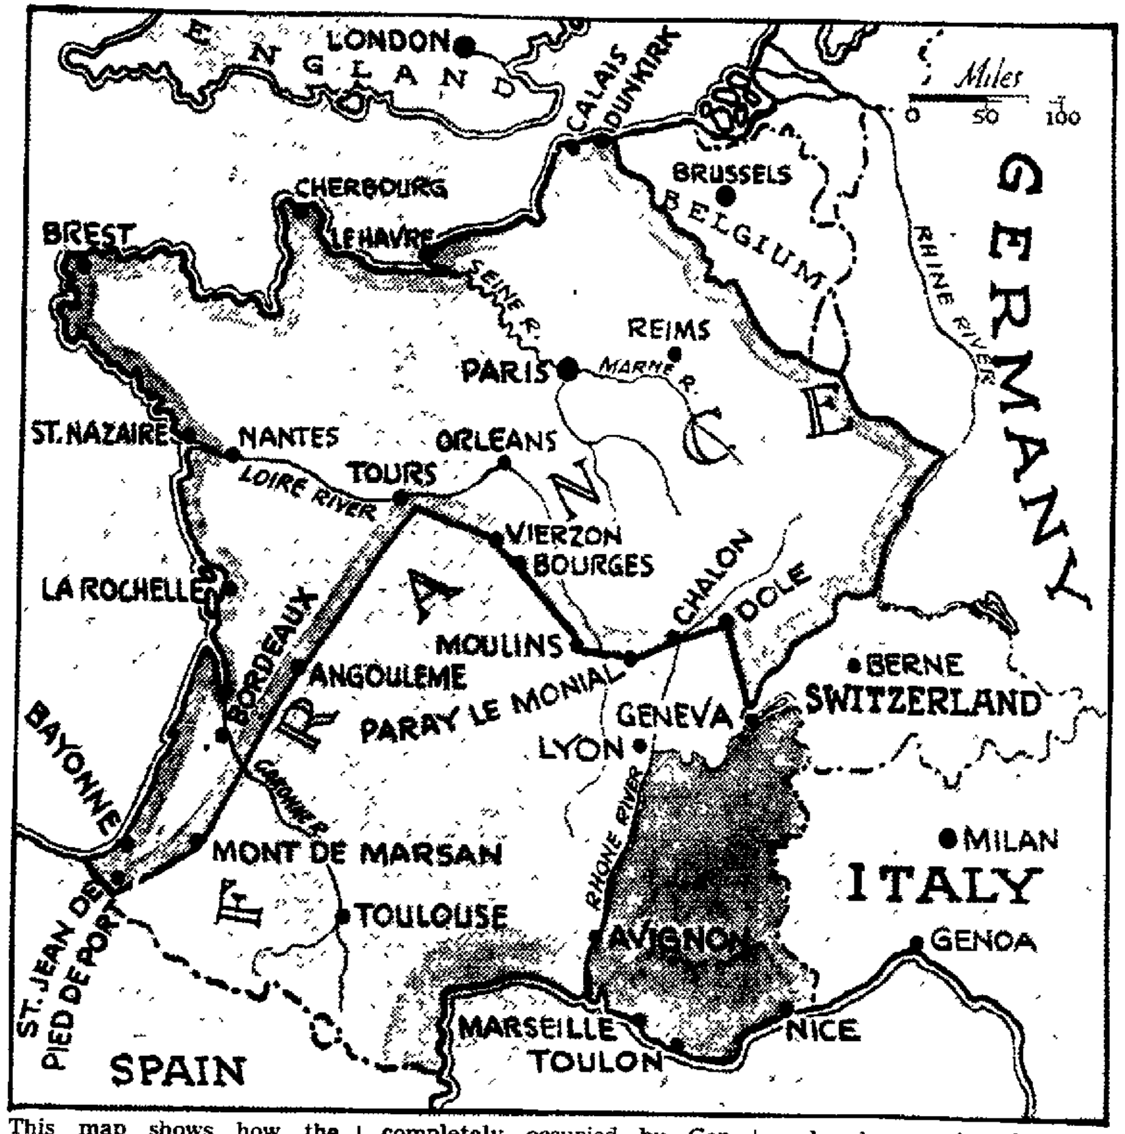
All Gaul Again Divided in Three Parts



This map shows how the once great republic of France may look now that the French have concluded armistice terms with Italy. The northern and western sections, enclosed in heavy borderline, are to be completely occupied by German forces. The shaded area in the south and southeastern sections, it is believed, will be occupied by Italy. This would leave a small inland "island," cut off from all major French cities and important industrial and rich agricultural areas—a mere remnant of old France. Today, Hitler and Mussolini may triumphantly repeat the historic words of Julius Caesar: "All Gaul (ancient name for) France) is divided in three parts."

Jap Fleet Goes To Indo-China

Nippon Announces Future Dealings Will be Solely With Colonial Authorities; Maneuvers Hit.

BULLETIN

TOKYO—(INS)—Japan today launched a military offensive in south China to cut off China's supply route through French Indo-China, which simultaneously was being watched by Japanese warships. Announcement of the military offensive was made by the Japanese military headquarters in south China.

(By United Press)

TOKYO—Japan announced today that it was dispatching a battle fleet to French Indo-China and it was reported that in future the Japanese government would deal directly with Indo-Chinese authorities and not with the French government in any negotiations.

Imperial Japanese headquarters made the formal announcement that arrangements had been made to send a part of the Japanese fleet in south China waters to Haiphong, the great port of Indo-China, "to watch for the time being conditions of transportation of goods to China by Indo-China."

(If the Japanese "watch" should be extended to the remainder of the Indo-Chinese coast, it would reach positions within 600 miles of the Philippines and 700 miles of Singapore.)

At the same time the foreign office announced that a corps of military experts and foreign office officials would leave soon to inspect conditions in Indo-China, in compliance with an agreement by France for stoppage of all aid to China.

As regards Indo-China, it was understood that in any future dealings the Japanese government would ignore the Bordeaux government of France and approach Indo-Chinese colonial authorities directly.

Likewise, it was understood that Japan would not recognize any French government in exile formed in London in opposition to the Bordeaux regime.

ACTION: U. S. Pacific Fleet Reported Steaming Eastward

(By International News Service)

HONOLULU—In a move shrouded with secrecy, the United States fleet was reported steaming eastward from Hawaii today.

Navy officials refused to either confirm or deny the rumor, one high official stating:

"We are not confirming the report; neither are we denying that it might be true."

The fighting craft ended their annual maneuvers in Hawaiian waters last May, and yesterday civilian observers said they saw a long string of warships leave the Lahaina roads, off Lahaina, island of Maui, and round Diamond Head, the customary route for vessels bound for the mainland.

In the long column of vessels were seen battleships, aircraft carriers and hospital ships, the latter indicating a long voyage. Hospitals ships ordinarily are not taken out on short exercises.

ACT ON BILL TO HIRE 2 FIREMEN

Councilmen Expected to O. K. Funds to Take Up Vacation Slack, End Squabble.

City council meeting in special session tonight is expected to approve legislation that will authorize employment of two firemen to serve temporarily during vacation periods.

Fred Miller, chairman of the finance committee, said today he had asked City Solicitor Marion D. Ward to prepare legislation calling for employment of the two firemen for a period of two months.

Ward said the legislation provides for an appropriation of $440 from the general fund to meet the expense.

A bitter controversy had been waged over vacations for firemen several weeks ago with Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger threatening to close No. 4 station for four months while firemen take their vacations.

City officials, however, ordered

'BREAK' ARRIVES

Farmers Making Hay as Sun Smiles on Wet Fields.

Making hay was the order of the day on Richland county farms today as it appeared that the series of rainstorms has ended, giving farmers a much needed "break."

Cut a week ago, a large part of the hay crop was in danger of being ruined by continued wet weather.

The crop will have further opportunity to dry out according to the weatherman who forecasts "continued fair and cooler" weather tomorrow.

The temperature at noon today was 72 after having dropped to 54 during the night. Yesterday's highest temperature was 75, and it was expected that this cool weather would prevail for several days.

Planes Attack As War Ends on Soil of France

Widespread Raids Penetrate as Far as Wales; London Reports 3 Dead, 13 Wounded; RAF Counters With Own Raids on German Centers.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(UP)—Nazi sources reported today that a map to be published by Germany will show the area of occupation in France as smaller than the present occupied area which covers about two-thirds of the country.

(By Associated Press)

German and British bombing planes struck with renewed fury today as peace stilled the battlefields of vanquished France and a total of some 5,000,000 French, German and Italian soldiers quietly obeyed the "Cease firing!" order.

First definite indication that the powerful French fleet, second strongest in Europe, does not intend to surrender—as stipulated in the Franco-German armistice—came from Alexandria, Egypt.

Part of the French fleet still remained in the Egyptian port, Britain's main naval base in the Mediterranean.

The cessation of hostilities on the western front and in the Maritime Alps came while the rest of Europe slept.

There were few outbursts of joy—none of the whooping shouts of fraternization that marked the end of hostilities in the World war on Nov. 11, 1918.

Italian infantrymen merely stacked their rifles and sat down on the mountainsides to drink hot coffee and wine. Artillerymen left their still-smoking cannons to join their comrades.

Some Italians called across the Alpine snow to French poilus, but there was no answer.

The combined Nazi-Fascist onslaught against France halted at 1.35 a m today (6:35 p. m, EST yesterday), with the terms of the Axis-dictated armistice still officially undisclosed.

Berlin reported that the conquerors' demands comprised 24 paragraphs and that they were "hard, but not humiliating" for France.

The German high command announced that in the last day of fighting, Hitler's armies advanced to Royan and Angouleme, 500 miles north of Bordeaux on France's west coast, and captured St. Etienne, 50 miles south of Lyon, in eastern France.

While Nazi warplanes bombed England—the German high command said the attack was aimed against British airports—British bombers attacked the Ruhr, Germany's rich industrial region, and plastered high explosives on a series of German-held airdromes in Holland.

Waves of German bombers, in the widest forays of the war,

SORROW: French Mourn As War Ends In Bitter Defeat

(By International News Service)

BORDEAUX—Conquered France today observed a solemn day of mourning as the big guns of her hard-pressed armies became silent under the dictates of victorious Germany and Italy.

All cafes, cinemas and theaters will remain closed, and the tricolor will remain at half mast. At 11 o'clock (5 a. m. EST) one minute of absolute silence will be observed in homage to the soldier dead.

It was expected that later in the day Premier Marshal Henri Petain will deliver a radio broadcast to the French people.

Although fighting had ceased on the blood-soaked battlefields, there was little in Bordeaux to mark cessation of hostilities. End of the war came as an anti-climax to the French people, for the public has known for some days that it was inevitable that France would bow to the dictates of Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

As the battered French armies relaxed in the first rest they have known since the invasion of the low countries May 10, the civilian population filed into churches and with heads bowed in national grief, prayed for the souls of their dead, their wounded, and some, for the living.

At 9 o'clock this morning the Petain government met to study the Italo-German armistice terms, and to take the formal moves necessary to complete the French surrender. Full details of the armistice terms will not be made public until they have been formally ratified by the Bordeaux government, it was stated.

POISED: Italian Army Set To March In, Take Spoils

(By United Press)

ROME—Italian troops massed today to march triumphantly into conquered France as Italy's 14th communique of the war, announcing cessation of the Franco-Italian hostilities, said that the "war continues against Britain and will continue until victory."

The communique said that hostilities between Italy and France ended at 1:35 a. m. (6.35 p m Monday, EST) not only on the continent of Europe but overseas.

Today's communique made no reference to occupation of French territory by Italian forces but an earlier dispatch by the official news agency Stefani said that before the "cease fire" order became effective, Italian Alpine detachments had passed La Blachere and were marching on the Riviera road.

Stefani said that Italian forces had penetrated into French valleys after breaking through French lines at three points.

The cease fire order was effective in all sectors, according to the communique. Previous reports had indicated that hostilities continued to the very minute of the deadline.

France's plenipotentiaries, after signing armistice terms with Germany and then Italy, remained in Italy today. They had intended to leave for Bordeaux but the weather was so bad that airplanes were grounded.

It was said authoritatively that the French delegates had accepted all Italian terms and had made no counter-proposals.

Italy, it was explained, handed the French delegates a take-it-or-leave-it document, which they had to accept or reject as a whole.

Roosevelt Cancels Sale of Mosquito Boats to Britain

KILLS BRITISH HOPE FOR 111 DESTROYERS

President Bases Action on Law Passed In 1917, Quiets Critics.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The projected transfer of 20 "mosquito" torpedo boats to Great Britain—a transaction which drew outspoken criticism in congress—has been cancelled by President Roosevelt.

The president's action destroyed British hopes of acquiring the 111 destroyers which the navy has left over from World war days, for he based his decision on a law prohibiting the delivery of American built war vessels to a belligerent.

Mr. Roosevelt ordered negotiations for the "mosquito" boat transfer halted late yesterday, after studying an informal opinion from Attorney General Jackson. The attorney general held that British acquisition of the craft—originally ordered for the U. S. navy—would violate a law enacted in June, 1917, when the United States and Britain were allies.

Before the order was issued, Secretary Edison disclosed that there had been "pressure" on the navy to sell its World war destroyer flotilla, but to no avail.

"We are keeping all our combatant vessels," he said, but did not mention the law later cited by the president. Edison discussed the attempt to purchase the destroyers at his final press conference before quitting the navy department to run for governor of New Jersey.

The "mosquito" boat transaction first became public a week ago. Assistant Navy Secretary Compton said that on his own responsibility he had authorized waiving of delivery on the craft. Stephen T. Early, presidential secretary, subsequently said that the decision had White House approval. Compton contended that the navy would benefit by acquiring later type vessels.

Censure was immediately forthcoming in congress. Chairman Walsh (D., Mass.) of the senate naval committee called the negotiations "surreptitious" and said the transfer might jeopardize national interests if war should come.

In ending the "mosquito" boat negotiations, Mr. Roosevelt stated the navy had requested his action because of the attorney general's opinion.

Sees Slaughter Of 30,000 Nazis In Maginot Attack

NEW YORK — (UP) — Thirty thousand German soldiers storming the Maginot line at Sedan marched up a hill and died in the fire of French machine gunners who were sickened by the slaughter, according to an American volunteer ambulance driver back from the battlefields.

Kenneth C. Banfield, 26, said French machine gunners told him of the "absolute disregard of life" shown by German soldiers who finally succeeded in breaking through the French defenses at Sedan.

"They came on and on, eight deep and stepping over the bodies of their comrades," Banfield said. "The French were sickened. The Germans were slaughtered like rabbits but they seemed to love the job of driving hopelessly ahead into the guns.

"It is a psychological reaction," Banfield said. "It is fantastic how they do it. It is not a question of courage but of blind obedience."

Up and Down THE STREET

Probably they don't even want to talk about it but several Mansfield couples know just what it's like to have cold water thrown on their plans. They went up to Cedar Point over the week-end to participate in rifle matches and enjoy an outing. The whole affair was to be climaxed with a donning of best cravat and evening gown to dance to the tunes of Sammy Kaye and his orchestra. The skies looked ominous when evening came but the couples dressed up anyhow and made a dash for the dance pavilion. The rain beat them to it. They came home drenched and dolorous.

He was showered with gifts from merchants of Boise after his "election." Howell also is a candidate for state senator on the Democratic ticket this year. Threatening weather and the unpredictable antics of the Cleveland Indians are no deterrent to Mansfield baseball fans who go in steadily growing numbers to the night games in Cleveland. Last night, according to a fan who doesn't drive as fast as some, every car that passed him on the road to Cleveland contained a load of Mansfielders, making route 42 look like a picnic caravan. Luck was with the fans, too. Rain held off for most of them on the drive to the game, and although it fell in buckets just at game time, the showers cleared away and the night was a pleasant one. And the homeward trip, they reported, was made in almost ideal weather conditions.

4 ASHLANDERS STEAL PARKING SIGNS AND THEN PAY CITY $100

A short escapade by four Ashland youths who attempted to carry away four Mansfield parking signs cost them $100 in municipal court today.

The youths were arrested shortly after 3 a. m. today by Lieut. C. J. Kalstein and Patrolman Gordon Drury on Ashland road.

Brought to police headquarters with the four standards found in the car, they gave their names as John C. Myers, Everett Myers, Philip B. Smith, and William D. Brandt.

Each posted $25 for his appearance in municipal court this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct. None appeared and Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch ordered the bonds forfeited. Costs in the cases amounted to $22.50 leaving $74.80 to be turned into the city's general fund.

Police were notified of the theft by a man who saw the boys loading the standards into their car on West Fourth street.

He told Deskman P. J. Martin that the car, bearing an out-of-state license, headed east on Fourth street. Martin dispatched Lieut. Kalstein and Patrolman Drury in a police cruiser to search for the car.

Lexington Woman Beaten and Robbed

WIDOW STRUCK BY ASSAILANT WHILE IN BED

Finger Broken by Blow as She Raises Hand to Protect Self.

Sheriff E. P. Long and deputies today were searching for an assailant who beat an elderly Lexington woman while she lay in bed early today and robbed her of her purse.

Mrs. Rose Kell, about 68, widow of M. A. Kell who for many years operated a hardware store in Lexington, was struck over the head and one of her fingers broken shortly after 1 a. m. as she lay in bed at her home on Grange street. She lived alone.

Bruised and suffering from shock, Mrs. Kell told Sheriff Long that she was awakened by a severe blow on the side of her head, and that as she cried out and raised her right hand to protect her head, the man struck her.

He hit her with a heavy instrument, the blow landing on her fingers, one of which was broken. It was believed by the sheriff that protection afforded by her hand may have saved her from a more serious head injury.

The man then went to a dresser drawer and took Mrs. Kell's purse. He told Mrs. Kell to remain in her bed for 15 minutes after he left, the sheriff was told.

Mrs. Kell later managed to get to the home of Charles Lawrence, across the street, but she was unable to arouse the family and then went to the home of George Kreps, whom she awakened. Kreps notified the sheriff.

Sheriff Long said that the robber removed a screen from a cellar window, climbed in through the window, threw the light switch off and cut the telephone wires.

Mrs. Kell said today that she believed there was about $10 in her purse.

Mrs. Kell remained at the Kreps home today.

Sheriff's deputies at noon today were still without clues as to the identity of the assailant. The sheriff expressed the opinion that the intruder was familiar with Mrs. Kell's home since he located the woman's purse without having to ransack the residence.

TOO SUCCESSFUL

Campaign To Humanize Industrial School Brings 'Recruits'.

SANTA FE, N. M. —(AP)— A campaign to "humanize" the state industrial school for boys is meeting with unexpected success.

The school band played at a Raton music festival. "Afterwards," said James Zukie, a member of the board of trustees, "three Raton boys went before a judge and asked to be committed to the school."

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Excerpts From Miss Midnight's Diary.

The new dream place of the summer's air conditioned cafe society is unquestionably the bisque and glamorous Cafe Pierre, which opened when most of the places devoted to the elegantes were closing, and which thereby garnered all the dallyers who were weeping because El Morocco and Monte Carlo were locked and dark.

It has, I must say, all the features the dizzy set adores: in architecture it is long and narrow, a sort of gilded bowling alley, so that a girl walking from the Fifth avenue entrance to a table in the back of the room gets her new Schiaparelli seen by everyone, can shout at all her friends on the way in, say hello to the boys in the band, and get mixed up in the floor show.

The floor show is Miss Carol Brauce, the beautiful belle from "Louisiana Purchase," and when I was there she sang excellently while such characters as Woolworth Donaghue, the William K. Vanderbilts, Mitzi Green, Frank Shields, Arlene Judge and the James Cromwells jived in and out. Awfully chic for June.

LaConga looked beautiful on Saturday night, probably because it was filled with Hollywood and semi-Hollywood blonds, Una Merkel, Miriam Hopkins and Veree Teasdale were bunched together at one large table, giggling at the conga line and seeming frightfully titillated when Mae Murray and her Latin partner skimmed by in the throes of a tango.

Betty Grable was in with her mother and a group of family friends, and while she was there a young man called her from Hollywood and talked for 15 minutes. The young man who had so much to say was Jackie Coogan, her ex-husband.

Sunday night Leon and Eddie's was as informal as lunch hour in a coal mine. The "relax in your no end of gents turned up in slacks" slogan is catching on, and sport shirts without ties. Barbara Bannister, the singing ham heiress, arrived late after a week-end in Westchester, wearing something that looked like a jersey evening dress until she took off the shirt and checked it. Then it looked like what it was: A bathing suit.

Milton (prettyface) Berle was there chilling his new nose and snorting a few gags.

"I can't wait to see the third in the series of Edison pictures," he said. "You know—'Edison, the Hotel."

Lyle Talbot sat on the ringside with a new blond (are there any new blonds left), but I would say from the number of times he was called to the telephone that quite a few of the old blonds were trying to get in touch with him . . . Frances Williams was sipping a cool drink, dressed in a pale pink sweater and skirt, and pale pink glasses.

All I wish to say about Ben Marden's Riviera on Monday night is that Brenda Diana Duff Frazier and John Shipwreck Kelly were there, that (a) they were alone; (b) they sat at an isolated table on the terrace; (c) there was a great big moon.

Martha Raye made the fatal error of walking into the Club 18 with a big picture hat on her head, and, as Martha should certainly know, a hat is just gag-fodder for the zanies in that asylum.

"Is that a hat, Martha," inquired Pat Harrington, "or a theater marquee?" Martha's escort, Don Budge, was allowed to beat the drums, which is his favorite form of exercise next to tennis, and George Raft, F. D. R., jr., and Maxie Rosenbloom (what a parlay) looked on.

Over at the Savoy Plaza's cafe lounge a more dignified kind of fun was going on. Hildegarde (whose lighting effects are getting more elaborate than the ones at Radio City) was leading the musicians in a rhumba dance, Robert Benchley was chuckling, Gloria Vanderbilt was looking increasingly grown-up, and the Duchess de Tallyrand looked frightfully amused.

Kitty Carlisle, Maj. de Seversky and Tony Sarg and Buster Crabbe added to the applause, and Vernon Duke, the composer, confided that his tune "April in Paris" was enjoying a big new revival. Conditions he thought. Nostalgia.

I am convinced that Conrad Nagel, the Clark Gable of the silents, stepped up to the desk of the Algonquin to register when he arrived and said to Frank Case: "Table and bath, please," instead of the usual room and etc." because I have yet to step into the Rose Room that I have not seen him decorating the same table, looking as if he had not stirred from the spot in days. I must look into it.

Jessie Ralph was telling everyone she couldn't get over the World's Fair. Frankie Thomas confided he was studying the piano so he could play the role of a concert pianist in a drama next fall, and Oscar Serlin admitted he had been serving on a jury.

"It was just like a play," he said. "It's given me an idea."

Dr. Hendrik Van Loon was sitting looking very thoughtful, probably musing upon the new geography of the world: Mischa Elman looked lost without his violin, and Rudy Vallee, equally lost without a girl.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

Vernon Hoagland, pinch-hitting for Robbin Coons, has written three stories on the life of the Hollywood extras. This is the first:

By VERNON HOAGLAND

HOLLYWOOD—So you want to be an extra in the movies, where some big director can single you out of the mob and make you a top-salaried star?

Take it from the men and women who are extras—that's not the way to crash the movies.

That's the way to starve, they say. That's the way to see uncertainty and poor food and irregular hours destroy looks and weaken self-confidence.

"We don't want any more extras," says Howard R. Philbrick, new chief of Central Casting. "We already have 7,000, and that's far too many. Our aim is to whittle that group down, not to admit new extras."

All extras must be members of the Screen Actors Guild. Prospective members must show they can fill a real need or serve a definite purpose. Usually, too, they must bear recommendations from members.

In other words, the would-be extra faces the problem of many a would-be anything else — the closed shop.

Average income for the Hollywood extra last year was around $146. Only 70 out of 7,000 made $2,000 or more. During this January there were fewer jobs than for any month since 1935. The calls for extras during the first four months of 1940 were fewer by 26,068 than during the same period in 1939, and the income $300,000 less.

Extras who get the most work are those who have the largest wardrobes. Women say that a wardrobe costing from $1,000 to $5,000 is necessary.

Those who work in mob scenes get $5.50 a day. In party scenes—informal dress—they get $11. For evening clothes it's $16.50. The few who speak a line or two get $25.

Few extras have worked up into featured roles and a very, very few have become stars. Gary Cooper once was an extra; so was the late Jean Harlow. Most stars have entered the films from the stage or radio or little theater.

The extra's part is invariably tediously small, and the work is repetitious—a dozen "takes" may be shot of the same small scene. If the extra tries to make himself noticed by pushing himself forward, he usually ends up with less work. Audiences might recognize him in another unconnected scene, so the director makes it a point to leave him out of the additional shots.

Says Brooks Benedict, one-time film heavy, now an extra:

"We're in the most uncertain, shakiest business in the world. People don't pay much attention to us—but when they do, boy, are we grateful!"

Indians Scorch Yanks, 7 to 1, As Feller Cops 11th Win

Victory Gives Tribe 2-Game Margin In Race

Cleveland Hoists Record to Eleven Wins Out of Last Thirteen Starts.

By JUDSON BAILEY, Associated Press Sports Writer)

WHEN the world champion New York Yankees went west, literally, a couple of weeks ago, they also "went west" figuratively.

There doesn't seem to be any use waiting any longer for them to come home, because they've gone to that place from which champions seldom come back.

Their epitaph was written last night in a score: 7 to 1.

That was the margin of the Cleveland Indians' victory, a seven-hit effort by Bob Feller for his 11th triumph of the season.

That also was the eighth loss in nine games for the champs, who used to whip through the west like a scourge of grasshoppers.

They were four games out of first place when they set sail westward. Today they are nine.

A lot of things are wrong, such as Joe DiMaggio hitting less than .300 for the first time in his life, and in addition the Yanks have some worthy competition for the first time in years.

Cleveland seems to have benefited by getting the Indians' discontent out in the open instead of fermenting in secret and last night's victory was the 11th in 13 games since the upheaval against Manager Ossie Vitt.

They backed Feller with an 11-hit attack in which everyone except Ken Keltner participated. Feller himself got a single and batted in two runs to help humiliate three Yankee pitchers. They scored in four of the eight frames in which they went to bat.

Al Milnar, already having 10 victories, was nominated to face the Yankees today.

The outcome increased Cleveland's distance over the second place Detroit Tigers to two full games. The Tigers and most of the other major league teams were rained out yesterday. The frolic at Cleveland was threatened all day by showers and delayed by more rain for half an hour after the lights were turned on. But 16 637 fans defied the weather and were rewarded.

The only other game to escape was at St. Louis where the Browns battered the Philadelphia Athletics 9-4 with a 12-hit assault that included four home runs. Two of these were by Walt Judnich, one was by Harlond Clift with two on and the fourth by Don Heffner. With this aid Elden Auker had an easy time bagging the victory on nine hits.

NEW YORK—(AP)—In the last two weeks the Yanks, Giants and Dodgers have played 11 Sunday games—and all they got out of them was one tie. . . . Maybe our Tennessee operatives can find out why the proposed Fordham-Tennessee football game is going into the Cleveland municipal stadium. We can't get the dope here. . . . Torby MacDonald, one of Harvard's best backs last year, has a fat offer to join up with the Yanks and is talking things over with his parents. He's an outfielder.

McNeill Cops Singles Title

Defeats Bobby Riggs, 6-1, 6-4, 7-9, and 6-3.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Don McNeill, Kenyon college graduate, has made a perfect take-off from the tournament they say is the "springboard" to top national tennis honors—the clay courts championship

The 22-year-old McNeill won the national clay courts singles championship at River Forest courts yesterday, defeating the No. 1 amateur of the nation, Bobby Riggs. Employing a forcing game and sharp net offensive, the Oklahoma star downed Riggs 6-1, 6-4, 7-9 and 6-3 to stop the Chicagoan's bid for a fourth clay courts title.

McNeill, using a driving forehand and a backhand with consistent accuracy, scored 43 placements to 23 for his opponent, who was handicapped repeatedly by his own errors

Alice Marble of Beverly Hills, California, captured the women's singles crown defeating Gracyn Wheeler of Santa Monica, Calif., 7-5, 6-0.

Doctor Looks At Tony

Makes Sure Galento Can Can Take Max Baer's Punches.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—Just to make sure that he hasn't burnt out a bearing or blown a gasket since he last submitted to an inspection, Two-Ton Tarzan Galento, Esq., will be given a thorough examination late today by Dr. Louis H. Dodson, of the New Jersey state athletic commission. This will be in the nature of one of the last precautionary measures to be taken before Galento is permitted to offer his beer-bloated carcass as a target for Max Baer's punches in the Jersey City baseball park a week from tonight.

Galento probably has been examined more than any heavyweight that ever lived. The attack of pneumonia he suffered some time back has caused him to be perpetually regarded as a candidate for the morgue if he allows himself to be unduly exerted, but he still goes on winning—from everybody except Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis. And he remains healthy even after fighting Louis.

In fact—and you can check his record on this—Galento has been a better fighter since he finished that prolonged encampment under an oxygen tent than he ever was before.

He probably isn't human, for he looks the part of nothing more prepossessing than a paunchy, cigar-smoking, lager-guzzling old gent who has failed in 30-odd years to learn any manners He hasn't learned to fight much either, but he can hit and everybody is wondering right now whether he will be able to make Baer quit before they have gone the 15

The betting odds are 7 to 5 on Galento and even money that the bout won't go the limit, as it very probably won't. They both hit too hard and Galento gets too rough in there if he is permitted to stick around for these two to get by 45 minutes of fighting without somebody being knocked out or cut into a technical knockout.

Myles Wins Top Money

Pockets $500 for Copping Poland Open.

YOUNGSTOWN—(AP)—Reggie Myles' pockets bulged today with the top money of the third annual $500 Poland open golf tournament after the Clevelander took the title with 73-71—144 by whipping two threats—the wind and Herman Keiser of Akron Portage Country club

Myles overcame the wind and equalled par for the 36 holes. Keiser shot 72-73—145.

Defending Titlist Sam Parks, jr., of Pittsburgh finished in a three-way tie for third with Alex Ogilvie of Cleveland and Ray Mangrum, Pittsburgh, at 146. Ted Luther, 1938 winner, tied with five other players at 150 to finish in the money.

Other leading Ohio scorers included:

Lloyd Gullickson, Canton 74-73—147.

L. Alcroft, Youngstown 74-73—147.

Undefeated Hermans To Meet Cabbies

Sporting a six-game winning streak, the Sons of Herman softball club will attempt to make it seven in a row tonight at 6 p. m. when they meet the Safety Cabs on the Liberty park diamond. Jimmy Fullager is scheduled to take over the mound duties for the Hermans in tonight's tussle. The Sons of Herman have not been defeated this year.

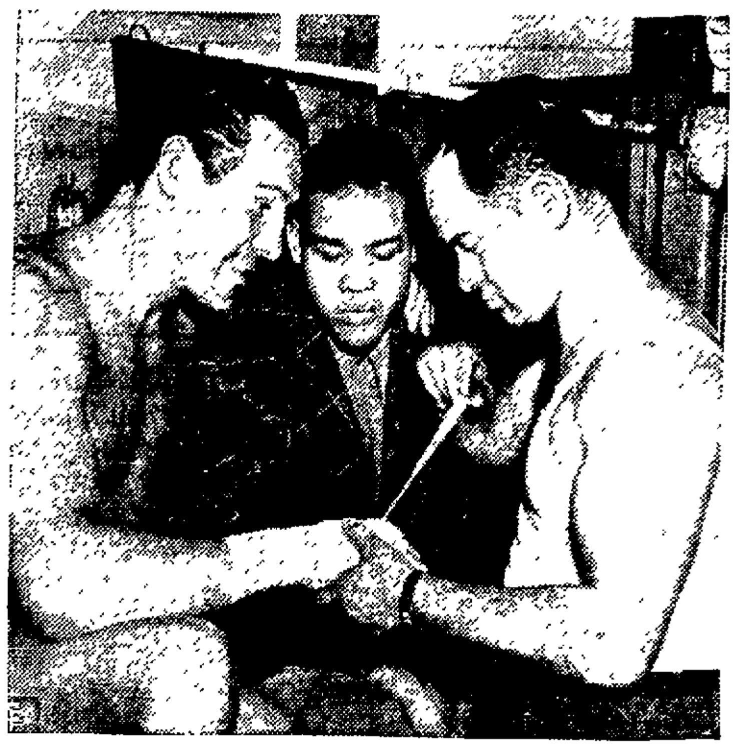
Joe Louis Looks Over Baer



Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, drops into the Pompton Lakes, N. J., training camp of Max Baer, who is readying for his bout with Tony Galento in Jersey City, July 2. MAY MAKE PUBLINKS GOLFERS QUALIFY

AKRON—(AP)—Large entry lists of the past few years have led the Ohio public links golf association to make tentative plans for district qualifiers before the 1941 public links tournament, instead of permitting all entrants to play the championship course.

Oilers Smother Braves 10 to 1; Gain Full Game

Although Nicked for 15 Hits Scotti Goes Route For Mansfield.

A 10 TO 1 DRUBBING at the hands of the league-leading Oilers last night found the Mansfield Braves a full game behind in the race for the Ohio State league pennant, as the Braves journey back to Mansfield today to take on the Findlay club before a "Ladies' night" crowd at the Fairground tonight.

Bob Arnold, a righthander, is scheduled to take over the mound duties for the Mansfielders tonight when they attempt to regain the ground lost by last night's decision.

On Thursday the Braves will tangle with the second-place Lima Pandas at the Fairground which will be "Westinghouse" night.

Tomorrow the Braves go to Lima for a doubleheader.

Although the Braves managed to find Willett, Findlay hurler, for eight hits in last night's fracas they failed to connect when they needed hits. Mansfield's lone run came in the fifth.

Although Scottie was no puzzle to the Oilers, Manager Dewey Stover left him in the game for the full distance. Findlay nicked him for 15 hits, scoring one run in the second, fourth, sixth and seventh innings and blowing themselves to a six-run splurge in the eighth.

Findlay called on two hurlers. Willet got credit for the win, but was relieved by Abiney.

Simon, Oiler center fielder, got four hits in four trips for a perfect day.

Tonight's contest is scheduled for 7:30.

Clark Hurls No-Hitter To Blank Akron, 6-0

LEAD by the brilliant no-hit, no-run pitching of Clark, the Mansfield Merchant girls softball combination imposed a 6 to 0 blackout on the Goodrich Local No. 5 team at League park, Akron, last night.

* * *

Throughout the six innings of play Clark, backed up by a top notch defensive, did not allow the opposing batters to hit safely once. She struck out four and walked three, to round out her sparkling performance.

Herrick, Merchant second baseman, poled out the longest hit of the contest by banging out a triple. Jocha, Merchant rightfielder, got the most hits of the game. She managed two singles out of three trips to the plate.

The Merchants scored two runs in the first, one in the second, two in the fourth, and one in the fifth.

Tonight the Mansfield club journeys to Howard, Ohio, where they will play the Howard girls' team under the lights. Game time is 8:30 p. m.

PERRONI TO TANGLE WITH EDDIE WINSTON MONDAY

COLUMBUS, O. - (AP) — Patsy Perroni, Canton heavyweight boxer whose draw with Jack Walker placed the only blot on the escutcheon of the Ohio heavy champ, was signed today to tangle with Eddie Winston, of Hartford, Conn., in a 10-rounder next Monday night.

Winston and Perroni have met twice before in Boston, each winning a decision. A match with Walker, the Columbus negro who the N. B. A. placed 10th on its list of top-flight heavies, was expected to be awarded the victor in Monday night's encounter.

BOSTON—(INS)—Big Paul Derringer was to take the mound today in quest of his tenth hurling victory for the Cincinnati Reds at the expense of the lowly Boston Bees.

Should he defeat the seventh-placers, he will be the first of the Cincinnati mound corps to mark up ten victories this season. Three of the staff—Derringer, Bucky Walters and Gene Thompson—have nine wins to their credit.

Dick Merriwell Erickson was to oppose Derringer.

Yesterday's tilt with the Bees, which was rained out, will be played tomorrow as part of the double header which will wind up the current eastern trip.

DOG ATTENDS SUNDAY SCHOOL

German Shepherd Gets Medal for Good Record.

CHANDLERVILLE, Ill.—(AP)—That shining silver medal worn by Mrs. Gretchen Aney's German Shepherd dog, Rin Tin, proves he is a model church goer. The Congregational church awarded him the medal for 10 years' regular attendance at Sunday school.

Since 1930, when the dog started going to church with Mrs. Aney's children, he hasn't missed a Sunday, always occupying the same spot in the front of the church auditorium and accompanying the primary class to its Sunday school service.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Year in and year out I suppose I spent as little time brooding over the Cleveland Indians as they spend brooding over me. Their good fortunes and reverses have touched me lightly, and I am sure that my own ups and down have neither caused them to celebrate nor to grieve.

* * *

Yet today, for some reason I am unable to explain lest it be because I heard a baby crying in the adjoining apartment, I found myself thinking of the Indians and wondering what would happen should they win the American League pennant and gain the World series.

I thought about the posssibility of the Indian winning for quite a while, and then came to the conclusion taht they don't dare win the pennant. They've gone on record, I believe, as saying that their manager, Oscar Vitt, drives them nuts, gives them the jitters, and makes them generally psychopathic. Victory for them would be an open admittance that they are the type of team that performs with complete efficiency only when they're abnormal and in the market for form-fitting straight-jackets.

No team wants to admit that. Furthermore, I'm not sure that baseball could withstand the presence in the World series of an outfit that by its own admittance was slightly less than rational. After all, baseball is our national game.

Far better—and I am sure Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis would see eye to eye with me—that a less gifted team mechanically, but one with all 52 cards in its mental deck, represent baseball in the World series. So, should Cleveland win, it would not surprise me at all if the members of the team were taken to the mountains for a rest and the Red Sox or Yankees or the Browns named to substitute for them.

Of course, the removal of the Indians from the World series would have a bad effect on the box office receipts. With the Indians in there, every psychiatrist, psychologist, and baby doctor in the country would buy a ticket. They would see in the series a chance to hold an outdoor clinic.

* * *

I have a feeling that the medicos would be chiefly interested in Rollo (take that stuff away) Hemsley. Rollo furnishes a most fascinating case. In the first place, he is one of the few men baseball has produced who ever caught a double-header while in the throes of a hangover. He is also the only man I can recall who, after raising what is scientifically termed as hell, for many a year, blew the whistle on a fellow who put up with him when he was creating his own little personal Hades. I refer to Vitt, whose nights in 1938 were not made any more pleasant by Rollo's pranks. I don't know what your birthday is, but far as I'm concerned, I'll give you Rollo, all for your own, if you just mail in the date.

Electric Cradle For Stimulation Of Blood Stream

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Rocking in an electric cradle, which moves from end to end instead of side to side, is science's latest treatment for a sluggish blood stream.

Istead of setting-up exercises or other violent exertion, the patient suffering from poor circulation goes to a hospital and crawls in the cradle, attendants at Wesley Memorial and Passavant hospitals explained.

A nurse regulates the mechanism of the cradle, called a vasocillator because it is designed especially to relieve disease of the peripheral blood vessels. The patient's posture is changed at intervals and the circulation stimulated.

The device looks like a bed mounted on a cradle. It is geared to swing the head and foot of the bed in arcs of 10 to 24 inches from the floor. A coil spring and felt mattress make the patient so comfortable he learns to sleep for hours in the bed so treatment can be continued for long periods.

The council on pharmacy and chemistry of the American Medical Association included the bed in its list of accepted therapeutic devices.

COLLEGIATE GOLF MEET ENTERS FINAL ROUND

MANCHESTER, Vt.—(AP) One of the keenest battles for medalist honors anywhere appeared in the offing today as the 145 competitors in the national collegiate golf championship trained their sights on the last 18 holes of the qualifying competition on the Ekwanok course.

Retiring President Neil Croonquist of Minnesota paced the field yesterday when he wound up with a par 70. That round gave him a single stroke lead over Johnny Burke of Georgetown, the 1938 champion, Warren Berl of Stanford, last year's defeated finalist, Bill Cordingley of Harvard and Bill Clark of Dartmouth.

Exactly 63 of the 145 starters turned in cards of 78 or better.

Terriers Drub Youngstown

Forge Three Full Games Out In Front.

YOUNGSTOWN—(AP)—Canton's Terriers were out in front of the Mid-Atlantic league pack by three full games today after drubbing the Youngstown Browns, 6 to 1, while the Charleston Senators were taking a 13-to-7 beating at Akron.

Butch Nieman contributed to the Canton cause by socking two homers, one with a man on base.

The Akron victory featured the debut of Outfielder Henry Hoysradt in a Yankee uniform The newcomer hit the first pitched ball out of the lot with two on in the second inning.

A foul tip ripped a fingernail from the throwing hand of Louis Kahn, Charleston catcher, forcing him to leave the game.

Fred Schmidt's four-hit pitching highlighted Portsmouth's 3-to-1 win at Dayton. Dayton's run came in the seventh inning on Moon Myer's homer.

Today's schedule: Portsmouth at Dayton, Charleston at Akron, Canton at Youngstown.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— If Outfielder Ben Chapman's batting average begins to climb, he can thank his lucky glasses.

Speak Up, America!

WHEN civil liberty permits disloyal public expression, then tolerance ceases to be a virtue. It is high time for America to speak up—calmly but vigorously—without hysteria, but with confidence and emphatic determination.

The voice of the People is America's voice and when the people speak, America speaks. Public opinion is the controlling factor in the United States and public opinion here is definitely in favor of keeping our present form of government, with personal freedom and unlimited opportunity for the individual. We want no foreign "isms."

THE TIME for patriotic silence has passed. This country of ours has been under verbal attack too long. "We, the People," should launch a smashing counter-attack and silence the voices of the enemies of our democracy. Let's mobilize public opinion and silence the agents of the foreign "isms" which are intended to destroy America.

Every loyal citizen should arm himself with full knowledge of the American form of government and the benefits derived by the individual living under its protection. And then, speak up! —The Constitution of the United States is the "Arsenal" of information which will equip every man, woman and child, to speak with authority on the supremacy of the American way of life.

Among our American rights is that of free speech. But, we don't use it, as we should—while we let our enemies use it in ways they shouldn't. —Freedom of speech is not only a right—it is an obligation. American patriots should be heard as well as seen.

PREPAREDNESS does not consist alone in providing armies, airplanes and ammunition. War-making equipment would be useless without an aroused and informed people declaring their approval of universal service and dedication of personal resources in defense of their country. —Let's not jeopardize our liberty through silence. Let's protect and assure it by speaking up, and now.

REMEMBER the Constitution! Renew in your consciousness its many provisions for your safety and comfort and welfare.

Your right to speak up and declare to the world that you are glad that you are a citizen of the United States is one of its provisions.

Your right to hold any religious belief you prefer and to worship according to the dictates of your heart, without governmental interference, is guaranteed to you.

YOUR RIGHT to be informed of facts and conditions as they are, through a free press, instead of as interpreted by government officials, is a priceless privilege.

Your right to assemble peaceably in religious, civic or political meetings is so much a part of your life that you may have forgotten the Constitution provided it for you.

Your right to help choose public officials and even to change provisions of the Constitution itself is so little appreciated that thousands of qualified voters fail to exercise the right of franchise. Yet they would not want that right taken away from them.

THESE are some of the privileges that we take for granted and assume to be permanent. But if they were suddenly withdrawn, what a storm of protest would be raised! Let's appreciate them, defend them, speak up for them. And let's strengthen our country by going right on with business, until it's time to do something else.

Yes, that's the American way, and it is time to tell the world that we won't trade our way of life for any other way.

Let's talk up America to our friends and talk down the throats of our enemies—

Speak up, America!

Headaches Cured When Baby Teeth Taken From Brain

BRESLAU, Silesia—(INS)—Three competely conserved baby teeth were pulled from the brain of an 18-year-old young man in a small Sudeten community, according to reports reaching the Silesian Surgical Association.

The young man, whose name was withheld, suffered from permanent headache since his early youth, but for years no physician was able to detect the origin of the trouble.

Some years ago eye trouble developed and when an operation on one eye failed to be of help, one physician recommended a thorough X-raying of all organs and suspicious parts of the body

The X-ray picture of the skull showed that a tumor with some unidentified concrete part in it had developed in the left side of the brain. When the young man was trepanated the surgeons, to their amazement, discovered three beautifully conserved baby teeth. They were extracted and as a result the eye trouble and headache disappeared.

How the teeth wandered to the brain or whethered they grew right there remains a mystery that the physicians failed to clear up.

JUDGE REALIST.

PORTLAND, Me. —(U.P.)— Probate Judge George L. Emery is a realist. Addressing a woman seeking a divorce in his court, he said: "Any woman who thinks she can reform a drinking man had better get that idea out of her head, because after marriage he will be worse instead of better."

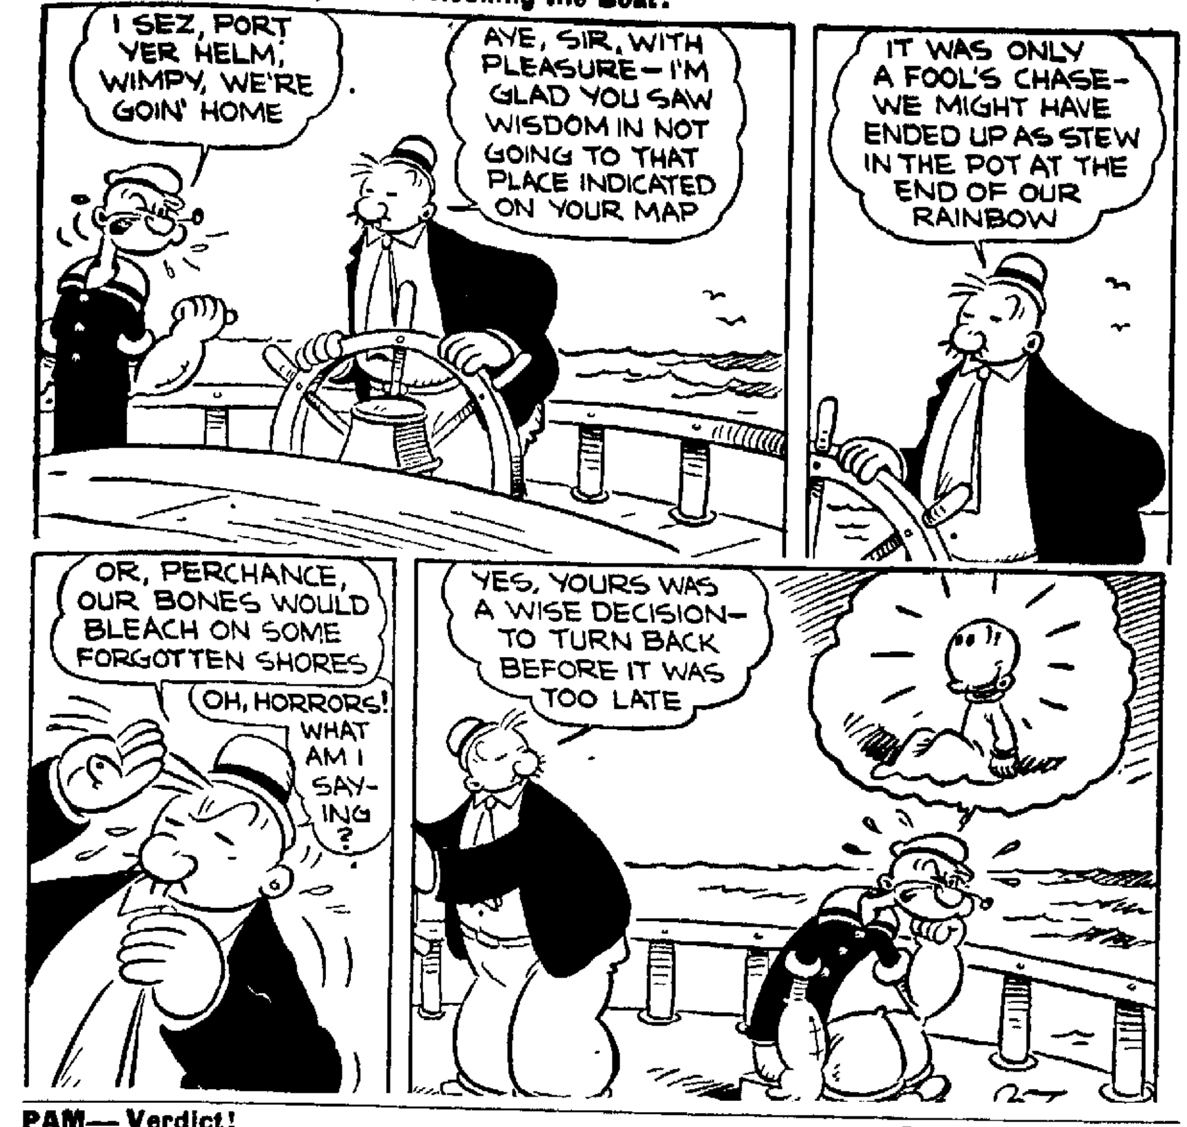
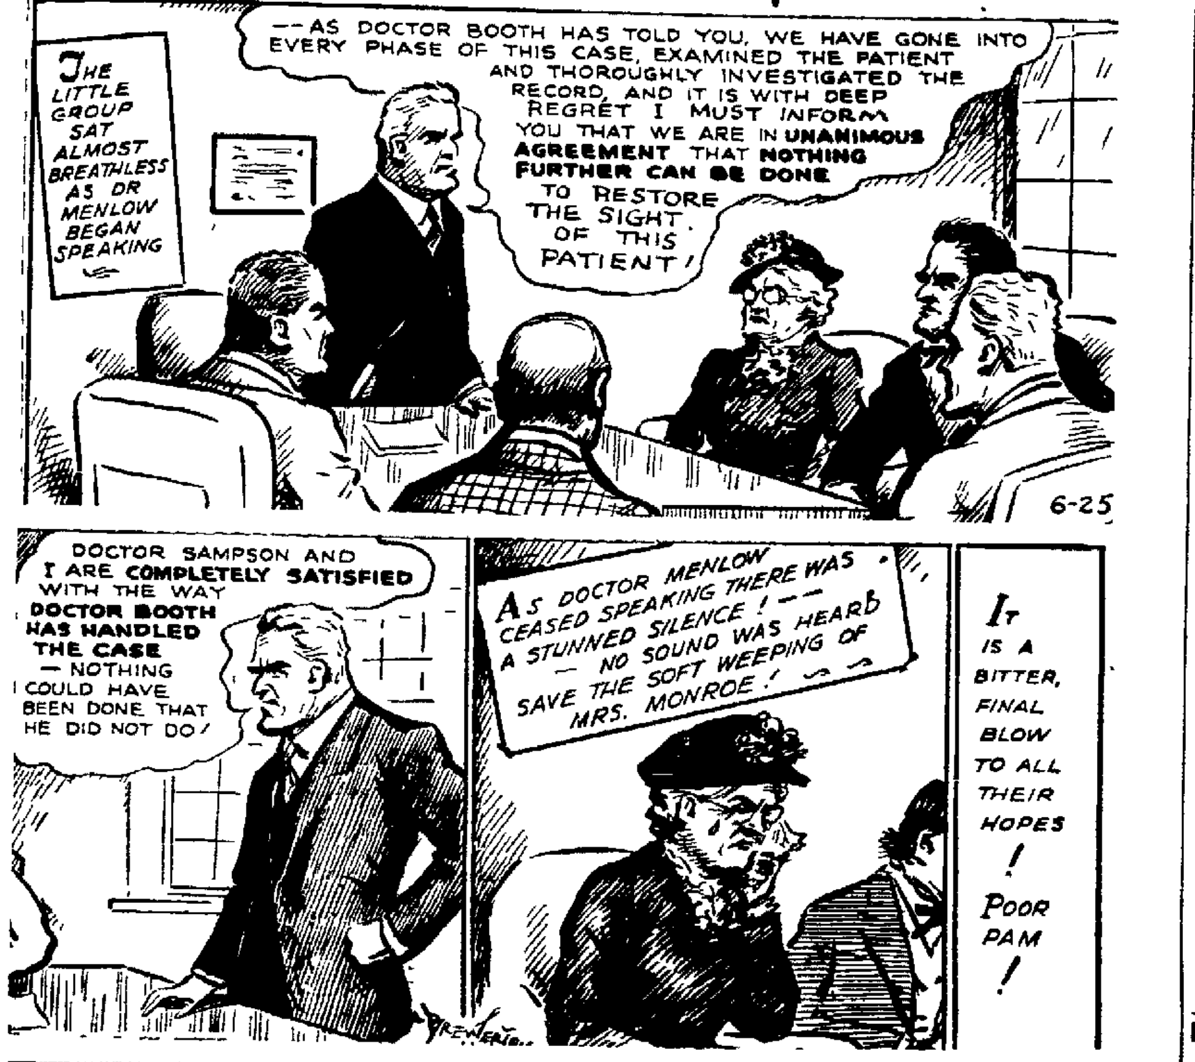
POPEYE— Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat!



I SEZ, PORT YER HELM, WIMPY, WE'RE GOIN' HOME
AYE, SIR, WITH PLEASURE—I'M GLAD YOU SAW WISDOM IN NOT GOING TO THAT PLACE INDICATED ON YOUR MAP
IT WAS ONLY A FOOL'S CHASE- WE MIGHT HAVE ENDED UP AS STEW IN THE POT AT THE END OF OUR RAINBOW
OR, PERCHANCE, OUR BONES WOULD BLEACH ON SOME FORGOTTEN SHORES
OH, HORRORS! WHAT AM I SAYING?
YES, YOURS WAS A WISE DECISION— TO TURN BACK BEFORE IT WAS TOO LATE

PAM— Verdict!

By A. W. Brewerton



THE LITTLE GROUP SAT ALMOST BREATHLESS AS DR MENLOW BEGAN SPEAKING
—AS DOCTOR BOOTH HAS TOLD YOU, WE HAVE GONE INTO EVERY PHASE OF THIS CASE, EXAMINED THE PATIENT AND THOROUGHLY INVESTIGATED THE RECORD, AND IT IS WITH DEEP REGRET I MUST INFORM YOU THAT WE ARE IN UNANIMOUS AGREEMENT THAT NOTHING FURTHER CAN BE DONE TO RESTORE THE SIGHT OF THIS PATIENT!

DOCTOR SAMPSON AND I ARE COMPLETELY SATISFIED WITH THE WAY DOCTOR BOOTH HAS HANDLED THE CASE — NOTHING COULD HAVE BEEN DONE THAT HE DID NOT DO!

IT IS A BITTER, FINAL BLOW TO ALL THEIR HOPES! POOR PAM!

PRICES PLUNGE ON CHURCHILL'S BLOW AT FRENCH

'Broken Promise' Charge on Fleet Disposition Sends Shares Downward.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market fell back today when Prime Minister Churchill asserted the French had broken their promise to preserve their fleet from the enemy.

On the downside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler Motors, Douglas, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Consolidated Edison, Western Union, Allies Chemical, Union Carbide, Westinghouse and Loft.

Bonds were uneven. Commodities generally slipped.

Analysts, noting the comparative resistance of rail shares, attributed it to reports of improved carloadings caused by war shipments plus the usual seasonal rise.

Some analysts said a period of market laxness was to be expected while the forces of Great Britain and Germany prepared for the next phase of the war.

Developments in the motor car industry engaged the attention of many investors. It was reported in Detroit that production of 1941 models might be delayed, partly as a result of heavy stocks in the hands of dealers, and that prices of those models might be advanced somewhat.

ATTORNEYS IN DEBATE OVER THEFT OF ARMS

Nine Defendants Acquitted Yesterday In So-Called Christian Front Trial.

NEW YORK —(UP)— Government attorneys debate today whether to drop the charges against five remaining defendants in an alleged plot to steal national guard guns and ammunition and overthrow the United States government. Nine defendants were acquitted late yesterday. The jury failed to agree on the cases of the other five.

The federal jurors had debated the case since Wednesday. Mrs. Helen Titus, foreman, said all but one juror wanted to acquit the other five.

Friends and relatives of the defendants, some of whom had attended every session of the trial, cheered the verdict and congratulated those set free.

All defendants had been represented by federal bureau of investigation agents as members of an "action committee"—the defendants called it a rifle club—of one of the so-called Christian Front groups. Originally there were 17 defendants.

They were seized by federal agents Jan. 14. The chief witness against them was Denis A. Healy, FBI employe, who had won the 17 men's confidence and had planted FBI agents in his home to hear the group discuss the advisability of "eliminating" Jews, bombing Communist headquarters and "bumping off" a number of congressmen.

Two defendants later were discharged by Judge Marcus B. Campbell and a third committed suicide during the trial.

Adams reported the youths were distributing pamphlets bearing the name of the Young Communist League of Cleveland and criticizing the United States government and proposed compulsory training of youth.

they had interfered with the new Japanese army operations there.

Reports received here from Hong Kong said that it was understood that T. V. Soong, China's leading financier, had gone to the United States to seek the cooperation of Secretary of State Cordell Hull in obtaining release of $6,500,000 worth of tungsten, en route to the United States from China, which Indo-Chinese authorities are holding.

The United Press Manila bureau had reported that Soong left there for the United States Friday in the Pan American Airways trans-Pacific plane Honolulu clipper.

French Sentry Posts In Shanghai Seized By Japs.

SHANGHAI —(INS)— Japanese troops today took over French sentry posts in the Siccawei section of Shanghai, and the tri-color striping of the sentry boxes and fence-posts was painted over solidly with red paint.

Although that section was not included in the Shanghai foreign settlement defense zone proper, the French extended their supervision to the Siccawei area in 1937 in order to protect the Catholic mission there.

In today's action, French and other foreign opinion saw the gate opened to further Japanese inroads upon the rights of foreigners in China.

ADVERTISEMENT CHARGES DEMS ARE LEADING U. S. INTO WAR

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The National Committee to Keep America Out of Foreign Wars sponsored a full page advertisement in the New York Times today quoting five Democratic senators in a warning that the Democratic party "is leading us to war against the American people."

Rep. Hamilton Fish, R., N. Y., is chairman of the committee. The five senators are Burton K. Wheeler, Mont.; Edwin C. Johnson, Colo.; Rush D. Holt, W. Va., Bennet Champ, Clark, Mo., and David I. Walsh, Mass.

The advertisement was addressed to "the delegates to the Republican national convention to American mothers, wage earners, farmers and veterans." Its introduction said:

"Stop the march to war!

"Stop the interventionists and war mongers!

"Stop the Democratic party, which, we believe, is the war party in the United States, and is leading us to war against the will of the American people!"

The advertisement said the Republican party can "sweep the nation" on the "paramount issue of peace or war."

PRESIDENT TAFT'S WIDOW DOES PART FOR SON AT CONVENTION

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The widow of a president was doing her bit today toward winning the Republican presidential nomination for her son.

Mrs. William Howard Taft missed the convention that nominated her husband in 1908, but she will be here if the same honor goes to her son, Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

She is crowding 80, but she turned the convention hall platform into an impromptu reception before last evening's session opened.

Her white head held proudly high, she walked on to the platform leaning on her daughter's arm. She wore her son's campaign color—battle red. Her evening dress was a deep red metal cloth, and over it was a brilliant red velvet cape. There was a red paper, Taft carnation pinned among the five strands of pearls around her neck.

Courtly Charles ("Hell 'n' Maria") Dawes, former vice-president, was to first to bow to her. He seated himself beside Mrs. Taft's daughter, Mrs. Fred J. Manning, dean of Bryn Mawr college.

The little, white-haired Mrs. Taft was asked about the burdens that her son might have to bear.

"Work? Bob's always worked hard. No job is too hard for him."

'RE-ARMAMENT' ON SPIRITUAL LINES URGED

Presbyterian Synod Speaker Deplores Declining Stand Toward Church.

(By United Press)

WOOSTER—Rev. Homer G. McMillen, Kenton, O., addressing the Ohio Presbyterian synod, suggested a "spiritual re-armament" today under which an individual would give one-tenth of his income and one-seventh of his time to the church.

He deplored what he called the declining standard of giving to church projects contrasted to the increased spending for nearly every other activity of life.

Rev. H. E. Montgomery, secretary and manager of the Presbyterian Home at Sidney, O., reported need for a building addition to house 18 persons and a chapel at an estimated cost of $45,000. The homes, opened in 1922, have 40 residents, the majority over 80 years of age.

The second day of the Synod opened with Rev. Jessie Halsey, Cincinnati, newly-elected moderator, taking over the presiding duties. Delegates discussed national missions, vacancy and supply, and the synodical society.

Rev. Halsey succeeds Dr. John Sharpe, of Martins Ferry, O., who yesterday told how religious instruction had been brought to 150,000 southern Ohio children by means of vacation Bible schools.

Dr. Sharpe, known as the "children's bishop," said that his first job in that mining area was to establish schools to teach English—because between 15 and 20 languages then were spoken there. He began his work in 1914, and for the past 18 years has been assisted by Clara Louis Smith.

Dr. Sharpe said that some of his first pupils now are bringing their own children to his schools.

He told nearly 500 delegates that they should all work toward animation of their churches with "a zealous evangelistic spirit." He spoke at the Wooster college chapel.

Church activities were reported by various delegates. Rev. H. G. McMillen, Kenton, O., delegate, reported for the committee on united promotion; Rev. F. H. Eastman, Mowrystown, O., told of progress in rural survey; Rev. William Huber, Akron, reported on the Ohio council of churches, and H. S. Mulford, Cincinnati, spoke for the pensions committee.

START SETTING UP FLASHERS AT FOUR CROSSINGS

B. and O. and Erie Installing Electric Warning at Two Streets This Week.

Installation of flasher lights at four Mansfield street crossings was under construction today.

The project is part of a $28,000 development sponsored jointly by the Baltimore and Ohio and Erie railroads.

It calls for installation of the devices by the B. & O. and Erie at North Main and North Mulberry street crossings.

Officials of the B. & O. said today that standards for the lights had already be constructed at the North Main street, Surrey road and the Ohio Brass company drive at its crossing.

With the work on tying in the electric circuit about completed it was anticipated that the entire job will be done and ready to operate within the next two weeks.

They explained however that the signals would not be put into operation until the Erie, which is making the joint installation at North Mulberry street, completes that project.

Reason for the delay was given that both light systems were to be "tied" into the same block system.

Erie railroad officials said engineers and materials were already on the job for the North Mulberry street installation and that work would be started in the next few days.

They say construction of the lights at North Mulberry street and North Main street will be completed on schedule. The signals are to go into operation Sept. 1.

Installation is the result of a drive started by former mayor Claude M. Hunter and carried on by mayor W. J. Locke to obtain full time protection at all grade crossings in the city.

NEW MAPLE LAKE NET COURTS TO BE READY WITHIN 2 WEEKS

Frank Burton, superintendent of parks, said today that "finishing touches" were being put on six new tennis courts at Maple lake and that they would be ready for play within the next two weeks.

The courts are located at the southeast section of the park on South park boulevard at the south end of Fairlawn avenue.

Burton said workmen today were engaged in hauling clay for the court surfaces and that in the next few days they would be rolled and lined.

Fencing will be started upon completion of the laying of the clay, the entire job completed and ready for tennis players shortly after the Fourth of July holiday.

The courts were started last fall by the WPA as a part of the city-wide parks rehabilitation project. Funds for completion of the parks project were exhausted before the courts were finished.

Burton said funds for completing the project were supplied by the Maple lake-South park association, with the parks department furnishing the labor.

CALLS FOR BIDS ON NEW TRUCK

Crafton Acts to Replace City Garbage Vehicle Smashed Up In Accident.

With one of the city's garbage trucks damaged in a collision several weeks ago, city officials today made plans to replace the vehicle.

Service Safety Director C. M. Crafton today called for bids on a new chassis, the specifications calling for delivery of a five-ton truck with a three-passenger cab and dual wheels.

He said that proposals would be accepted at his office in the city building until noon on Wednesday, July 10.

City council authorized the purchase at its June meeting when it appropriated $1,000 to meet the expense and authorized the service-director to sell the used chassis for not less than $234. The body of the wrecked truck was not damaged and will be mounted on the new chassis.

The truck was damaged beyond repair when involved in a collision with another machine May 29 on Ashland road at the city limits. Morris Stephenson, driver of the other car was fatally injured.

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— American men can help bar Fascism from this country by enlisting as scoutmasters to instruct our youth in principles of democracy, advises Thomas J. Keane, of New York, national senior scout chief.

"We have 40,000 scoutmasters in America," Keane told Bucks county scouts, "but we should be able to get 40,000 more. We need them as soon as possible in order to give scouting to all boys who want to join."

He pointed out that Adolf Hitler cemented his control over Germany through his mastery of the youth movement.

NEUROTICS CO-OPERATE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. —(INS)— Clifford R. Adams, of the Psycho-educational clinic at the Pennsylvania State college, claims neurotics are as efficient as normal people, and also more co-operative.

"It was easier to make appointments with them, and they were more eager to please," he stated. "The neurotic group was no more susceptible to frustration than the stable group, and they were just as efficient.

Being a neurotic was not necessarily a bar to membership in fraternities or other social groups.

BUSY BEAVER.

POLARIS, Mont. —(UP)— Let no one say a beaver can't be belligerent as well as busy, say Henry Hollinger, Bob Harrison and Clark Mills. When the trio stopped to investigate a beaver they found 200 feet from water, the proverbially busy animal took offense and drove them back to their automobile.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, JUNE 25, 1940.

This year has also brought quantity production of history and precedents.

There should be no place in this country for either a pie counter or a bread line.

A careful observer would like to know how it happens that the guys arrested for drunken driving always say they had "just one short beer."

Hatred and Revenge Hold Sway

FRANCE, as it has been known in this generation, has ceased to exist. It is now subservient to the dictates of Germany and Italy.

The present moment is too filled with conflicting explanations and uncertainties to permit an accurate estimate of causes or to forecast the future of a nation that had overcome many difficulties in its progress to greatness.

With France "blacked out" as a factor in the war, attention now concentrates on England, and the British Isles, where the hordes of Hitler are expected next to unleash the full fury of the most barbaric warfare the world has ever experienced.

When Adolf Hitler presented the preamble to the French armistice terms he said: "In reliance upon assurances given the German Reich by the American President Wilson and confirmed by the Allied powers, German armed forces laid down their arms in November, 1918 . . . then began the time of suffering of the German people. . . . Broken promises and perjury conspired against a people which, after more than four years of heroic resistance, had only one weakness—belief in the promises of democratic statesmen."

Hatred and revenge motivated the harsh terms of national annihilation inflicted upon France. Even more intense hatred is now directed toward Great Britain. As an ally of France and Great Britain in the conflict which was suspended by the armistice of November 11, 1918, what is to be the fate of the United States in event military might of totalitarian powers becomes the determining factor in a not distant future?

Don't 'Muff' the Airport Chance

BACK in the early days of railroad development Mansfield "muffed" an opportunity to have the Cleveland-Columbus line of the Big Four come through this city—as had been originally contemplated.

The lethargic and self-satisfied attitude which resulted in missing that opportunity was bitterly regretted later.

There is now a somewhat similar situation in the growing field of air transportation and Mansfield is delaying improvement of airport facilities to the point of jeopardizing its future development along this line.

Mansfield is so situated as to be the logical point for east-west and north-south passenger and express air services, and for pilot training, but to take advantage of this circumstance it will be necessary to construct concrete runways and provide other equipment essential to a modern airport.

As the largest city in this north-central Ohio area Mansfield can ill-afford to neglect placing emphasis on the importance of proceeding immediately to improve the local airport, to the extent of making it suitable for such uses as are now and will later be required.

Self-Discipline In a Democracy

NORMAN THOMAS, Socialist candidate for president, believes it is "fantastic" to assume that the United States could resist Fascism in time of war. A policy of "hemispheric defense" on our part, he says, would lead us to a policy of imperialism.

Such arguments carry weight with some peace-loving Americans, but are they sound? In time of flood, earthquake, hurricane or fire, the citizens of this free country have again and again applied martial law in order to maintain order and organize defense against the terrible consequences of such disasters. When the job was done the soldiers went back to their routine duties, the civil government resumed functioning, and no shred of democracy was lost.

The difference between authority so imposed and that of totalitarianism is that the former is self-discipline, the latter is slavery. The former is applied for the common good, the latter for the increased power of the ruling clique. The former is imposed by the representatives of the people for a temporary need. It is removed by them when the need is ended.

There is no reason why these things should not be true if it becomes necessary for the United States to discipline itself by military training and military service to fight the plague that has overwhelmed Europe and threatens the rest of the world. The point is to know what is being done, and why. Drastic measures can then be endured, as long as necessary, for the sake of human rights and democracy.

Faithful In Small Things

THOSE who sometimes look about for an example of faithful service over a long period of time would do well to consider the case of William Bell, familiarly known as "Bill," who served as houseman at the Elks' home for 25 years and who was highly regarded by all Elks and others who knew him.

"Bill" could at all times be depended on to perform his duties capably and conscientiously and his conduct reflected credit upon himself and his race.

He was fortunate in finding the kind of work he liked to do, and was able to do well. His exemplification of the qualities of good citizenship merits emulation.

Value of Private Enterprise

AS PRACTICED under the American system, the close association of private enterprise and national prosperity is becoming more generally recognized. And when private enterprise expands to meet increasing needs everybody benefits.

This is aptly illustrated by an item which appeared recently in Electrical World. This year, it states, the electric utility industry is spending $605,000,000 for construction. As a result, it is estimated, new jobs are being created for 1,200,000 workers. And those people will receive directly $454,000,000 in wages—75 per cent of the total expenditure.

The whole country will share in that gigantic payroll—which is in addition to the regular utility payroll. Every state will feel the good effects. And as the 1,200,000 workers spend their wages, more new jobs will be created. It is a gigantic circle of spending, in which benefits are multiplied time and again.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The fists that launched a thousand counter-attacks for dancing, prancing Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom, the reformed pugilist, caressed his jaw and his cheeks gingerly as he relaxed in the deep cushions of a wicker divan in his dressing-room in the Strand theater on Broadway.

"Don't ever let anybody tell you," said Maxie, "that being an actor hasn't got it all over being a prize fighter. In the ring you've got to stop everything that comes your way with your face. Even now, when I think of some of those fights I've been in, my face automatically begins to swell up. But I never was scared. I wasn't even scared of Harry Greb, and he hurt me more than anybody. Hell, I wasn't even scared to go on the stage."

This was an interlude between two of the five daily shows that Maxie has during his three-week engagement at the Strand. He had just roared into town with Rudy Vallee and the personnel of the Vallee show, along with Gene Mann, his manager, who is a sharp, cigar-smoking hombre who likes turn-down hats and fast horses, and Sidney Fields, his gag-writer, now doubling as a stooge in the Strand audiences.

MAXIE had never before been on the stage in front of a live audience, although crowds have been no novelty to him and shyness is not a part of his nature. I remember an incident one night in a Broadway night club when the master of ceremonies was about to introduce Congressman Sol Bloom, who had just come in with a party of friends on a sightseeing tour. Maxie had won an important fight, and feeling that this laudatory introduction was intended for him, he leaped to his feet, clasped his fists over his head in traditional pugilistic fashion, and took a bow. No, Maxie is not shy. He never was one to turn his back when the multitude clamored, no matter for whom.

"I got a good tip on a horse," Maxie suddenly yelled. An 8-1 shot. Can't give you his name because I gave my solemn word I wouldn't tell. . . . Well, maybe I didn't give my word. That horse is Grand Union. . . . He can't miss."

(Note: Grand Union ran 4th.)

AND what does Maxie do on the stage? There are, frankly, no set rules, and no holds are barred. Sometimes he sings a little song, which he wrote himself, about Noel Coward. . . . Sometimes he apes Harry Richmond. Mostly he straddles a chair up near the footlights and argues with the audience. They seem to love it. Maxie seems to love it, too. He is well fed these days, and expensively dressed. The turtle-neck sweaters of the resin era have given way to egg-shell blue sports jackets and fancy flannels.

And he is a happily married man, his wife in professional life being a child psychologist.

"One night she asked me for my autograph," explained Maxie, "and she was so cute, and I was so lonesome, and so anxious to settle down that, well, hell, I asked her to marry me, and she said yes. We've been married eight months and two days, and it doesn't seem a day over eight months."

Yes, Slapsie Maxie is a lucky young man. After 365 professional fights his head still is on his shoulders. He is a successful comedian with the Rudy Vallee hour, and he has made 20 movies. Furthermore, he has a valet, who is a sort of streamlined "Rochester," proud of his boss, and proud of his job.

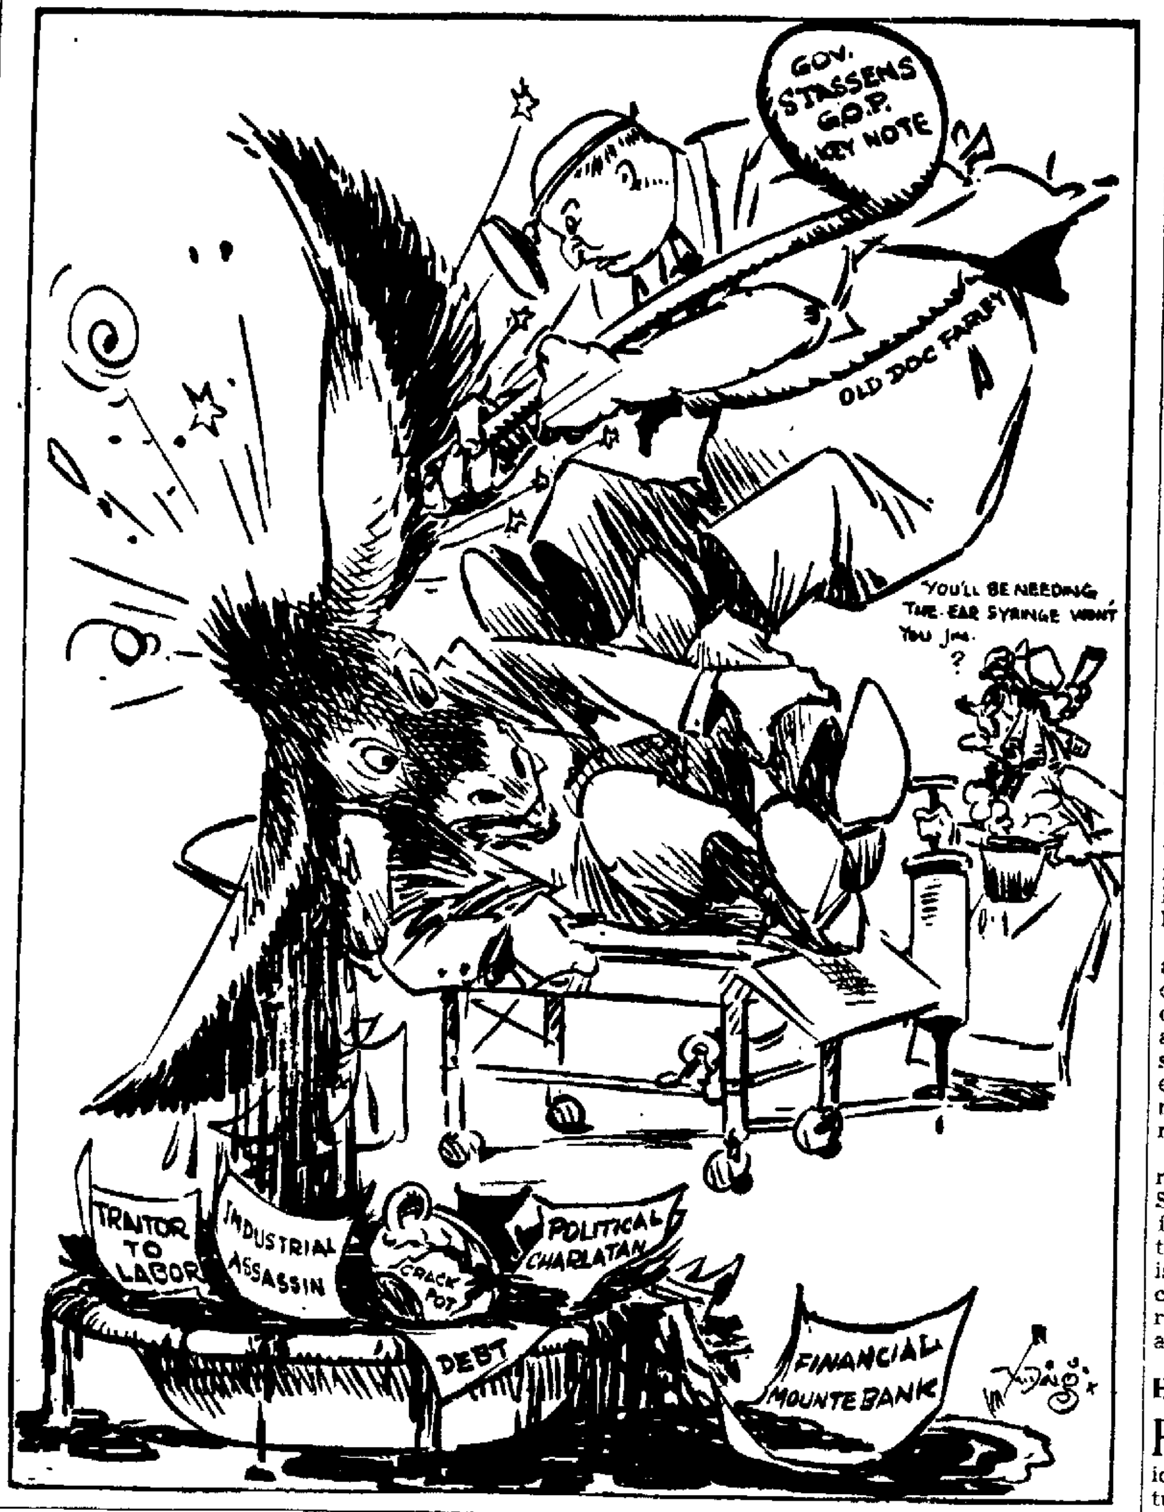
QUITE AN EAR FULL



Health And Diet

Malnutrition Has Many Causes.

—By DR. CLENDENING

IN CONNECTION with diets for underweight, it would help to an understanding if we would examine the nature of chronic malnutrition and its causes.

Aside from any real disease process which causes malnutrition the factors which condition nutrition are physical environment, psychological environment, food, individual requirements, appetite and utilization of food. The physical environment, which depends upon the economic state, the geography, the amount of fresh air, housing conditions, exercise and adequate rest periods, needs no comment.

Food Comes First.

Nor does the psychological environment. We all know people who worry themselves thin. Under individual requirements we also know people who need more sleep, more exercise, or more laughter than their neighbors.

We are principally interested in this study in the question of food. Most important in this are the factors which have to do with appetite. Some people are chronically indifferent to food or even have chronic slight nausea. Sore mouth, infected mouth, imperfections and absence of teeth, all have important bearings on the weight of the individual. I told a story not long ago of a professional friend of mine who had an imperfect denture put in which took away his appetite and taste for food so that he lost thirty or forty pounds.

Adverse elements affecting the intake of food are ignorance which exists among the rich and poor alike: in fact, is probably commoner among the rich because they are more likely to be able to indulge in food fads, such as separating the carbohydrates from the proteins and other things that make people thin. A great many people get thin because they follow too long, diets prescribed by physicians for actual disease processes, such as ulcer of the stomach, high blood pressure and allergic states.

Depends on Vitamins.

Appetite to a considerable extent depends upon the proper amount of vitamins in the food, and so does absorption. Physical activity has a great deal to do with the proper utilization of food. By increasing energy expenditure, the caloric requirements of the food are raised by several hundred or thousand calories. If this is not met, malnutrition will result. Here is a vacation diet for underweight:

Breakfast: Baked apple; liver and bacon; 2 eggs; 2 slices toast and butter; coffee with cream and sugar.

Mid-morning: Glass milk, ½ cream.

Lunch: Cream soup; croutons; smoked sturgeon; bread with butter; fresh peas; salad; fresh berries with cream and sugar.

Mid-afternoon: Orange juice.

Dinner: Tomato juice cocktail; beefsteak with mushrooms; peppers stuffed with cheese; bread and butter; Romaine anchovy salad; cream puff; coffee with cream.

Evening: Eggnog.

Approximate value 3,900 calories.

Listen, World!

Blitzkrieg of Prayer.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

LIGHTNING WAR, a blitzkrieg of blood and steel, has brought hell to Europe.

Can a blitzkrieg of prayer bring heaven to America—the heaven of abiding peace?

In the quiet Convent of Mary Reparatrix, in New York City, they believe it can, and are going to put their faith to the test. For nine days, the Nuns—and all who will join them, throughout America, regardless of creed—will hold a Solemn Public Novena pleading for peace at St. Leo's Church, at 9 East 28th street.

Will it work? We're rushing every other form of preparedness in these nightmare days, banking our dollars and our faith on every death-dealing device. WOULD PRAYER PROVE AS POTENT AS T. N. T.? DO WE NEED TO GO DOWN ON OUR KNEES AS WELL AS INTO OUR POCKETS TO SAVE AMERICA!

Many will agree that we do. But many more will smile a little scornfully at that question—will say that prayer is based on superstition and has no place in our modern scheme of things. All right, have it your own way, neighbors—but I don't agree with you. I'm not a Catholic, nor a shining example of any other creed. But I get around. And every day of my life I see countless proofs of the power of prayer. So do you, only you don't recognize them!

The trouble with most of us is that we think of prayer as a special, supernatural rite to be accompanied by mysterious reactions; whereas it's actually the most simple and necessary function of our common life. Everything we do or have or are, is the result of prayer. The table at which I write . . . the book I am reading . . . the laws I obey . . . the standards of life I respect . . . they are all the result of someone's prayer. Before they ever took form in wood or word, they lay as a dream, a hope, in someone's heart and mind. Before anything is ever done, someone must wish to have it done. And that wish, that hope, that reaching out IS PRAYER, whether you call it by that name or not.

You can no more live without praying, than you can live without breathing. And always your prayer is answered. It may not be answered in the form you desired, for each answer is conditioned by our own fitness and fervor. But each wish we make does something to our own lives and to the world around us. As surely as you ask, "it shall be given unto you."

Then, if by Faith and Prayer we can produce objects and ideas, why can we not produce conditions as well? If we can clutch a table or a book out of the Infinite, why can't we clutch that peace we so desperately need! I believe we can. But there's a catch in all this which it's well to remember. Faith is easily the most tremendous power in human life—but it works for the bad man as well as the good. And often better! For the bad man will frequently do far more to put his idea across, than will his respectable brother—as England and France now know to their grief! You needn't expect God to play on your side, just because you have nice thoughts. You've got to get busy as well!

And so I'm backing that Solemn Novena by my little sisters of the Convent of Mary Reparatrix, with all my faith and gratitude. They are a great example to every patriotic American, whatever his creed.

While the rest of us talk and wring our hands, they are going straight to the source of all action. And for nine days and nights, while the rest of us sleep and play, they will be storming heaven with a blitzkrieg of prayer!

Will the Father who answered America's first prayer on that stern and rocky shore hear their cry now, in this hour of our darkest need? I'm thinking He will. I'll be asking Him, too. Why don't you?

Strength-Giving Hills

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IN ONE of the deep valleys in this section I came upon an old-time log barn. The sides were hand-hewn as were the heavy rafters and the sleepers for the floor and mows. It had no siding and in several places the spaces were wide enough that I could see through to the other side. It rested on sandstone walls which had been recently repaired with mortar mixed with cement. The ragged roof with thin oak shingles turned up by sun and heat, showed threadbare spots where lath and rafters were visible.

An old house was set back against the foot of the hill. It was a story and a half, with weathered siding and a large stone chimney at the western end. Three small-paned windows were at the side and a spacious porch showed more modern materials and carpentry.

Back in the shadow an old man sat reading. He did not hear my car but when I walked through the gate that closed the picket fence he raised his head. His thin gray hair reached to his shoulders and a broad white beard moved in the wind. His large blue eyes were kindly.

Now I saw that the book he had was a large-typed copy of the Old Testament and Psalms. He motioned me to a handmade stool and I sat down beside him.

From here we could see a large part of the narrow valley and a great hill that towered far beyond. I could hear the clear water of the spring gurgling over colored pebbles down to join a larger stream. I remarked about the beauty of the surroundings.

"When I was just a little boy," the old man said, "my father used to sit on the other porch of this cabin—that he built himself—and look far off at that same high hill and read me these same words I've been readin' now—'Lift up thine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh strength'. He used to say it with such reverence that I was impressed, although I wondered, as I ran about alone, just what the words meant. When I got older and the Civil war struggle was upon us, and three of my brothers went, he read this Book more'n ever.

"I cannot gaze upon that hill that looks so green and beautiful without a desire to climb and get up among them great trees and sheltering rocks again. No wonder, I often think, the ancient peoples built their altars there, for it weren't an easy place to reach. I guess true worship and struggle always goes together."

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

PHILADELPHIA—President Roosevelt doesn't know it yet, but the new secretary of war, Henry L. Stimson, came near issuing a tart blast against his ex-chief, Herbert Hoover, just before he entered the Roosevelt cabinet.

The incident is important, because it is the key to what is almost sure to be a big issue in the coming presidential campaign.

Mr. Stimson served for four years as Hoover's secretary of state, but this did not prevent him from becoming extremely wrathy when he heard about the talks Hoover was having with certain Republican leaders.

Hoover had been pointing out that the Allies were defeated, and that Roosevelt had been staking everything on an Allied victory. But now it was no use for the United States to go down with them.

So whether the American people liked it or not, Hoover told friends, Hitler was going to rule Europe, and the United States would have to be practical and do business with him. What the country needed was a man in the White House who had not alienated Hitler and who had contacts in Germany.

Hoover did not state specifically that he considered himself this man (he lunched with Goering last year). But it was obvious he had himself in mind.

These conversations came to the attention of Mr. Stimson and also of Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and a Republican, but like Stimson a strong believer in Roosevelt's foreign policy. They talked about making some statement, but finally decided not to do so.

However, this same "appeasement" issue—whether the United States should or should not make friends with Hitler — buzzes through GOP delegations here and is sure to be important in the coming campaign. If Roosevelt runs for a third term, it will be all-important.

Hitler and U. S.

FROM diplomatic information it is possible to get a general idea of what the immediate future will bring forth in Europe if Hitler takes England, as he seems sure to do in the next month.

1—He will want to buy U. S. cotton and grain in large quantities—in fact, he will be willing to take most of our surplus—but he will want a huge loan from the United States government to do it. This will be called reconstruction financing, and it will be tempting bait to farming and business groups.

2—It is more than likely that Hitler will offer to freeze the armaments of Europe and the United States on the basis of their present armed strength.

This also will be tempting to a tax-ridden American public. The United States always has favored disarmament, and several times has proposed freezing armaments. However, this was when France and England had an army and navy, and when this country was protected by them in South America.

Today, Hitler's reported plan would leave the United States with less than 250,000 men, Germany with about 3,000,000. In other words, Latin America would be open to attack at any time, and the United States would be powerless to prevent it.

Nevertheless, Hitler's plans would have strong appeal in the United States, especially if accompanied by the usual Nazi propaganda stating that Hitler had only the kindliest ideas about the United States and cherished absolutely no designs for any part of her soil.

Note—This was the propaganda Germany dropped from airplanes on France before the tanks came. It told how France and Germany had no basic quarrel, could live in peace indefinitely.

Silent Manager.

IN A CONVENTION featured by many colorful individuals, one of the most unusual is a tall, handsome World war ace who is doing his stuff so effectively behind the scenes that his candidate is sure to have among the largest number of delegates on the first ballots.

He is David Sinton Ingalls, Senator Taft's cousin and campaign manager. It is characteristic of him that although he has a public record in many respects much more colorful than his candidate's, he has assiduously kept himself in the background. Ingalls has two passions: one, modesty, the other aviation.

Born to wealth as the son of a vice president of the New York Central Railroad, Ingalls was five years old when he assayed his first flight—without benefit of airplane. He undertook this experiment while his nurse wasn't looking, from the limb of a tree. "Watch me fly," he yelled, and leaped. It was a gallant effort, but disastrous.

Fifteen years later Dave achieved his ambition. As a Yale student he enlisted in the air corps. In six weeks of furious warfare in France he shot down, according to his army citation, "at least four enemy airplanes and one or more enemy balloons."

Ingalls returned home with a chest covered with medals and finished his schooling, graduating from Harvard law with honors and in 1925 entering a law firm in Cleveland. Two years later he was elected to the Ohio legislature, later became assistant secretary of the navy for air under Hoover, and in 1932 ran for governor of Ohio. But the Roosevelt landslide snowed him under. Ingalls returned to private life until his cousin Bob commandeered him to run his senatorial campaign in 1936 and now his presidential campaign.

Forty-one years old, father of four girls plus a boy, Ingalls, like most flying men, is superstitious. He won't enter a room where there are thirteen people. Recently he even held up a dinner conference until he could get another person to make fourteen.

Ingalls says he has good reason to fear the number thirteen. There had been thirteen flyers in the war unit to which he was assigned. They thought it was a joke, used to laugh about it, but within two days all thirteen had been shot down and killed.

So now if you see Dave knocking wood and whistling, you'll understand why.

Convention-Go-Round.

THE jubilation displayed by Republican bigwigs when John L. Lewis uncorked his blast at Roosevelt was one of the strangest political sights seen in a long time. Old Guarders like ex-Senator George Wharton Pepper, Pennsylvania corporation lawyer; Charles Hilles, ex-New York National Committeeman; Jim Watson, one-time Senate floor leader, and Henry Fletcher, ex-national chairman, who last week wouldn't have been seen on the same side of the street with him, rose and cheered the CIO head. A few months ago they were denouncing him as a "menace." . . . Behind John Hamilton's announcement that he was not a candidate for another term as national chairman was the quiet but powerful hand of Alf Landon. The Kansan privately let it be known that no candidate who was considering Hamilton as campaign manager could expect to get his support. So to save them from any embarrassment, Hamilton declared himself out of the picture. . . . This convention certainly is a big improvement over the Cleveland one in 1936 in feminine pulchritude. The various headquarters are overrun with good-looking young women.

free must maintain our ideals of liberty in the midst of world chaos and confusion."

He denounced a seven-year trend under the New Deal "toward one-man government and national bankruptcy" and warned that "personal liberty, equal rights, equal justice, constitutional government—these are in danger of being extinguished."

"This convention," he said, "will nominate a president to lead America out of the wilderness of economic confusion and spiritual chaos. We are here to rally all patriots in a crusade for Americanism."

"We must see to it," he said, "that our national reason is not warped and befuddled by political propaganda, pleas for power, bureaucratic blundering or selfishness of section or class. This is no time to be stampeded into hasty decisions.

"We must preserve our country from the schemes and treachery of those unsympathetic to our constitutional republic and who would destroy it.

"Destruction of our constitution, our government and our freedom can be brought about, unless we are vigilant, by economic betrayal just as readily as by military betrayal.

"All 'fifth columnists' must be rooted out and thrown out. 'Trojan horses' must be barred from our government. We must not permit political liberty to be used as a mask for plotters against the American system. The constitution must not be misused to destroy the constitution.

"Our people may well thank God there is in this nation one party which refuses to coddle or foster the enemies of free government."

Martin emphasized the Republican party's long stand in favor of adequate national defense.

"We stand four-square," he said, "in our determination to have an army, a navy, an air force amply able to protect our shores; to defend our people and our ideals from any foe who might challenge our determination to work out our destiny peacefully in the American way."

Tonight former President Herbert C. Hoover delivers a speech which may pull the plug on all the other contestants and give the nomination to the man from California.

Good news for Taft and bad news for Willkie came from Pennsylvania whose organization leaders privately indicated that they might soon desert Gov. Arthur H. James a "favorite son," in an effort to throw the nomination to the senator from Ohio. The organization controls about 55 of the state's 72 votes.

The party's platform wrangle apparently has subsided with word from newly arrived congressional non-interventionists that the foreign relations plank is sufficiently against war to suit them.

The credentials committee was in session all night, hearing challenges against various delegations and delegates, mainly from the south. It refused to seat "Tieless Joe" Tolbert, 74, national committeeman from South Carolina, who has attended every convention since 1884.

Gov. Stassen, of Minnesota, one of the few Republicans in public life who honestly can say he has no chance for this nomination, keynoted the convention into battle with the Roosevelt administration last night.

Delegates received his address with alternate periods of cheering and silence and it failed to provoke a parade which is the final gesture of appreciation from a political convention audience. But Stassen, after a prelude of assurance that the nation would support the Roosevelt administration on a national unity basis so long as it remained in office, called on Republicans to turn the New Deal out next November.

He did not attempt to commit the party to detailed policies, but denounced President Roosevelt's suggestion for compulsory government service for the nation's young men and seemed to favor, instead, some kind of military training under army officers, technical training in vocational schools and in industry and moral training in churches, schools and homes. Compulsory training as suggested by Mr. Roosevelt, he said was "not the American way."

Stassen condemned the administration for failing to prepare the nation for national defense, charging that: — "Our leaders have been jauntily knocking chips off shoulders without preparing our army and navy. For a long time our foreign policy has been a policy of big noise and little stick—and even that little stick on order. We need again, and how we need again, a calm, resolute voice and a big stick."

Delegates leaped up cheering when Stassen proposed that federal payrolls be purged of all those supporting "Nazism, Fascism or Communism."

He appealed to trade unions to divest themselves in their own way of all officers and organizers of Fascist, Nazi or Communistic sympathies. His language seemed to imply a desire for an embargo against shipment of arms and implements of war to Italy, Germany, Japan and the soviet union.

Stassen's speech hit hard and often but it did not throw the switch for a whooping convention demonstration and not a delegate left his place nor was a state standard yanked from its moorings, parade bound. All of that is expected to begin tonight, however, when Mr. Hoover makes the convention appearance which many here believe also is an "I'm willing" gesture toward the presidential nomination.

There is a cat-in-the-catnip contentment among Taft supporters as the anti-Willkie movement develops under circumstances suggesting that the Ohio senator is likely to benefit from it most.

Dewey's campaign got a boost from credentials committee action in seating the Florida delegation favorable to his candidacy and excluding a contesting delegation favorable to Taft. Florida has 12 votes.

Willkie Admits Failure To Get Taft-Ohio Votes.

PHILADELPHIA —(U.P.)— Wendell Willkie, aggressive New York Republican presidential candidate, confessed today he had made no headway in his drive to break the solid front of Ohio delegates for the candidacy of Senator Robert A. Taft.

"There's no break in the Ohio delegation for my benefit," Willkie declared in a hasty interview. "I have no assurance of any votes as yet from the delegation."

His statement drew quick corroboration from Ohio spokesmen. They contended the delegation will stick to Taft to the finish despite the open "raids" by followers of the New York utilities executive who split the Republican convention into a "free-for-all."

DRAFT PLANK TO CURB WAR AID

ples within the boundaries of international law."

This declaration, approved by the pre-convention subcommittee on national defense, had been turned over to the new subcommittee for polishing. Instead, the new subcommittee put new teeth into it.

The new approved plank, which is expected to be adopted, would bitterly condemn President Roosevelt's foreign policy and "loose talk" in international affairs, demand big-scale defense steps, and curtail the original "aid to the Allies" compromise.

Another plank in the platform—which according to schedule is to be submitted to the convention tonight—aroused controversy among members of the drafting group.

One subcommittee approved a plank endorsing the "principle of reciprocity" in trade agreements. This was hailed as a victory by supporters of the presidential candidacy of Wendell Willkie, reciprocal trade treaty advocate.

Westerners on the committee demanded that this plank also be qualified. They propose to make it read:

"We favor reciprocity that means the exchange of goods that do not come in competition with goods of this country."

On other phases of the platform, the drafting committee was in substantial agreement. Highlights of these are demands for "equitable" amendments to the Wagner labor act, a free press and free speech guarantee against "encroachments of the New Deal," rejection of the Townsend old age pension plan, and various financial, agricultural and other programs.

Asks 'Calm, Resolute Voice And Big Stick'

Declaring that the United States must build immediately defense forces strong enough to beat off any attack upon the western hemisphere, youthful Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, above, asserted in his keynote address at last night's session of the Republican national convention in Philadelphia that "our foreign policy has been one of a big noise and a little stick" while the nation needs again "a calm, resolute voice and a big stick." Governor Stassen is shown facing the battery of radio microphones on the speakers' rostrum as he delivered the address.

ACT ON BILL TO HIRE 2 FIREMEN

Councilmen Expected to O. K. Funds to Take Up Vacation Slack, End Squabble.

the vacations extended through the next six months and the finance committee was asked to provide funds for two temporary employes.

Seeburger had asked for four men several months ago, but the request was turned down by the committee which ruled that limited city funds prohibited their employment.

With the 1941 municipal budget and a second reading on a parking meter proposal scheduled to be held over until the regular July 2 meeting, the major piece of legislation facing council is an appropriation of $2,000

The money is sought by Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton who plans to hire additional help in the sewer maintenance department to carry out a sanitary sewer cleaning project.

Approval of a $100 appropriation for purchase of 1,000 bicycle licenses is also expected. The city's new license law went into effect last week but tags have not yet been purchased.

In addition, there will be a number of petitions and claims acted upon.

PACIFIC FLEET LEAVES HAWAII

Navy Department Silent on Report Ships Steaming Towards Panama.

queried regarding a report that the fleet is speeding eastward from Hawaii.

Edison's only comment was that policy matters in connection with fleet movements are not decided by the navy department. This gave the inference that the reported eastward movement of Uncle Sam's Pacific armada—which high navy department officials in Washington refused to confirm or deny—might have been ordered by President Roosevelt. The White House was silent on the subject, temporarily at least.

Argentine Fleet Placed On Coastal Patrol Duty.

BUENOS AIRES—(AP)—The ministry of marine ordered the Argentine fleet today on patrol duty along the entire 1,500-mile coast of Argentina, cancelling at the last minute naval plans to leave for Buenos Aires for declaration of independence celebrations July 9.

The cancellation order said it was necessary to "strengthen vigilance along the Atlantic coast in compliance with international obligatoins contracted at the 1939 Panama conference."

NAZIS LAUNCH BOMBING ATTACK AGAINST BRITAIN

English Reply With Air Raids On Germany; Fighting On Soil Of France Ceases.

thundered over Britain from London to the northeast and penetrated to the west coast over Wales and northwest England, dropping explosives at many points while British fighters and anti-aircraft gunners struggled to bring the raiders down.

Despite the extent of the areas attacked, however, only three civilians were killed and 13 injured, the government announced.

London itself had its first raid alarm since the first weeks of the war, but the government said that there were no casualties or damage in the capital area. No bombs were reported dropped.

The drone of planes was heard, however, and at least one was picked out by a searchlight.

The "cease firing" orders that came, as scheduled, six hours after France yielded to Italy, created dramas of differing sorts among the conquerors and the conquered. The end was at 1:35 a. m., German and Italian time. (6:35 p. m. Monday, EST.)

France in sorrow ordained this a day of national mourning.

In Germany, there was noisy exultation.

The reichsfuehrer was extolled as having brought to a grateful Germany her most glorious victory.

Hitler himself, in a brief proclamation, declared:

"In humility we thank God for his blessing."

He ordered that the bells of the greater Reich be rung for seven days and that the national flag be displayed for 10 days to mark the triumphal end of the war with France, which began Sept. 3 but which broke in all its fury only 46 days ago.

Italy, Germany's partner in war for only two weeks, was more subdued in her celebration.

It was announced in Bordeaux that actual terms of the two armistices would be published 48 hours after the fighting stopped.

Britain already has reported that the German terms include occupation of more than half of France, dissolution of the army and internment of the navy.

Far from the scene of French catastrophe, other nations flexed their muscles.

Foreign military and diplomatic quarters in Hungary heard that Rumanian and Russian troops had clashed at several points on the Dniester river frontier. Rumanian officials refused to discuss the reports.

Charges France Broke Pledge About Fleet.

LONDON —(AP)— The French government under Marshal Petain went back on its "most solemn assurances" to Britain that the French fleet never would fall into German hands, Prime Minister Churchill charged in the House of Commons today.

Churchill, making his sixth war report, said France had agreed to dispatch her fleet to British ports while armistice negotiations were going on.

He said he had made it perfectly clear that the British intended to continue the fight, and had also made it plain to the Petain government that the conditions indispensable to their release from their agreement with the British had not been complied with.

He made no reference to the whereabout of the French fleet at present, but said "it is clear that French war vessels under this armistice pass into German or Italian control fully armed."

The prime minister disclosed that he had refused a request of Premier Paul Reynaud to release France from her obligations as an ally.

Churchill made the disclosure after telling commons that "we hope to rescue France from the ruins of bondage into which she has been cast."

The meeting with Reynaud, he said, was at Tours, the first substitute capital after Paris was abandoned.

"We agreed," said Churchill, "that a further appeal should be made by M. Reynaud to the United States, and if the reply was not sufficient to enable M. Reynaud to go on fighting—and he, after all, was the real fighting spirit—then we should meet again and take a decision in the light of the new facts."

Germans Await Battle for England.

BERLIN—(AP)—Germany's population, which for six weeks had watched anxiously yet confidently the progress of the battle in France, cheered the conclusion of that war today and waited for the next phase—the battle for England.

"We're sailing against England," sang men and women. Bands played the song against a background of pealing bells—acclaiming what the high command called "an incomparable victory for German arms."

In a fresh gesture apparently designed to erase the memories of the 1918 defeat, Adolf Hitler named Wiesbaden as the seat of a new French-German armistice commission—Wiesbaden where the French army of Rhineland occupation had its headquarters. Gen. Heinrich von Stuelpnagle was named chairman.

The fighting in France had ceased at 1:35 a. m. and to the end, the high command said, the Germans had continued their thundering advances, reaching Royan, at the mouth of the Gironde on the Atlantic coast, and Angouleme.

In Lorraine and on the Rhine, its communique reported, France lost additional fortifications. Some 22,000 French surrendered on the Donon in the Vosges, and southwest of Lyon, St. Etienne and Annonay were taken, while advances were made by mountain troops in Savoy and Aix Les Bains was taken.

Schoolgirl Wife Unhappy

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"When I was 16 I quit high school and married a boy much against my mother's wishes and hopes for my future. I was living on a farm and his stories of the big city excited me, and I imagined myself in love. I had known him only three weeks.

"For a while I was happy, but when I became homesick and lonesome I complained. I went to shows, but he always grumbled when he had to take me. I had no friends, so I went back to high school. Although the girls are nice, they have their own parties and dates, and I feel more like their mother. I'm only 18.

"My husband is only 23, but he never wants to do anything I want to do, he is like an old man. I like to dance; he says nightclubs are cheap, and that we ought not to be talking about pleasures when people in Europe are starving. He says all sorts of mean things, and shouts so that the neighbors can hear him. He has even struck me several times.

"What shall I do, Miss Fairfax? I know I didn't really love him and I feel I'll be happier without him. I want to go home, but I think there could be worse husbands. I've tried to do my part, but going back to school has given me a driving desire to get an education. Did I do wrong? My husband's ideas and mine are as far apart as the poles.

"MARRIED SCHOOLGIRL."

When a boy of 23 acts like a "very old man" it is usually because he is overworked, has lost his high spirits in trying to earn a living for himself and his wife. I'm so sorry for youngsters who marry too early and become disillusioned and restless.

Of course, the answer to this girl's letter summed up in a paragraph is that she and her husband were both too young to marry. But stating the cause for their dissatisfaction with each other doesn't solve their problem.

Youth is life's playtime, the curtain raiser of fun, irresponsibility and supposed happy endings before the real drama of life begins—whether it's going to be tragedy or comedy. Deprived of the jolly curtain-raiser for any reason whatever, youngsters are apt to grow morbid and irritable.

My sympathies are with this boy she married, even though he has been cowardly enough to strike his schoolgirl wife when his temper has been particularly nasty. If he indulged in these caveman tactics in certain cities of this country, the law would give him a dose of his own medicine. Lashing a wife-beater may be brutal but a brutal act has provoked this legal corrective.

I don't believe the girl is as completely finished with her marriage as she imagines. "There could be worse husbands," she writes me, and that makes me think their differences might still be patched.

Before definitely breaking up, it might be well for her to go back and pay a visit to her mother. And then she would probably write me: "I never knew 'till we were separated how much I cared."

At least this simple experiment seems worth trying. What do the readers of my column think about this case?

GETS CITATION 21 YEARS LATE

CONSHOHOCKEN, Pa. —(U.P.)— Shortly before the Armistice, Edward H. Keenan was cited for valor in the Meuse-Argonne, but the citation did not arrive until more than 21 years later—on his birthday.

He recently met his former captain and the talk turned to the World War. The captain learned that Keenan never had received his citation. It arrived shortly afterward, however, with information that he had been awarded the Silver Star medal.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Then Lillian put a question.

'Suppose Leslie has men hidden near the rendezvous? But you've probably counted on that—and discounted it."

'I should be a poor leader if I failed to anticipate such a move," he answered. 'On the roads the other side of the rendezvous, headed this way will be at least two cars filled with men. And I am sure Leslie will not try to win a losing fight. He figures, of course, that he holds the trump card, the secret of the hidden passage into the attic. He will go back, get all his men together, and either tonight or tomorrow night, probably the second—he will need time to perfect his plans—he will bring all of his force along the secret passage and into the trap I have prepared for him."

There was something so grim, so implacable in my father's voice that I could not repress a little shiver—not of sympathy for Leslie—he deserved none,—but there is something deep inside me which balks at the idea of a trap for either man or beast.

"And now,"—my father said with a little wave of his hand to Harry Underwood. "I give way to you. I should advise taking Mary first. Then while you're doing Noel, we'll have time to study her impersonation and detect flaws in it, if any. Her impersonator will of course have the harder job."

"If you'll just sit over here in this corner, Watson," Harry said to the man in Mary's clothing, 'I'll have Mrs. Veritzen walk up and down, turn around, and talk, all with the light falling full upon her, so you'll have a chance to study her."

"I'll stand, if you don't mind," Watson said as he took his place in the corner Mr. Underwood had indicated. "But there's one thing I want to know first. Am I supposed to be talking. That's going to be the stickler, you know. I can do all the rest—easy."

Harry Underwood's resourcefulness did not fail him.

"You have so bad a cold," he said promptly, "that you cannot speak above a whisper. Get me?"

'Okay!' The man bent forward in a watchful attitude, and Mr. Underwood turned to Mary.

'Now, lambie pie!" he adjured, grinning at her, and I knew he was trying to make light of a frightening situation, "strut your stuff! Be a nice little mannequin, and walk around, first alone, then with Noel. Here's a footstool, about the height of a running board, and this low chair is about the height of the car floor. Imagine you're entering a car. Remember to lower your head, so you won't bump it, and go over the gesture until I tell you to stop."

Mary obeyed his every direction meticulously, and went over them again and again while Harry Underwood watched the man who was to impersonate her. Finally Watson raised his hand.

"I've got it," he said. "No need of tiring her out."

"Do you want to go through the stuff now, or after I change your make-up?" Mr. Underwood asked.

"Afterward," Watson replied promptly. "I can be mulling everything over while you're fixing me up."

"Then," Mr. Underwood said to Mary, "if you'll sit here, and Watson here," — he indicated two chairs in the line with each other, "I'll get to work."

He brought a small table to his side, and upon it spread the contents of his make-up box. Then, with intent glances at Mary, he began to manipulate Watson's face, while we all watched, fascinated by his skill. When he had finished, he turned both Mary and Watson around for our inspection.

"Well! what's the verdict?" he asked. "Do you think Leslie will be able to tell the difference, if the plan goes wrong, and he decides to get into the game himself?"

EACH POD HOLDS SOME 20 SEEDS
6-25

SHEPHERD'S - PURSE RICH IN SEEDS

Shepherd's purse is an annual weed which is not particular as to soil, therefore it is to be found almost everywhere. Each plant produces seeds running into the thousands. Each little seed pod, or purse, holds some 20 seeds. Because Shepherd's-purse is so rich in seeds it is important the plant be eliminated from yards and gardens at this season when its seeds are ripening.

Shepherd's-purse has a flat whorl of root leaves, as shown in the Garden-Graph. The flowers are small and white. The seed pod is flat and heart-shaped. The seeds from this weed will live for a number of years.

This pest can be pulled out of the ground easily after a soaking rain, or it can be cut off below the crown by means of a hoe. In large areas it can be controlled by spraying with iron or copper sulfate.

Get In Shape For Outdoor Season

By MME QUI VIVE

Beautiful dry goods, cleverly cut, can disguise figure defects. Smart dressmakers turn that trick often enough. They use slenderizing fabrics and colors, utilize slick lines and foxy draperies that hide the bumps. Grand. But they can't do anything about a bathing suit, there not being enough of it to do anything with. It is cruelly revealing. Tummy shelves, hips like the spreading chestnut tree, fatted calves—there they are! And the poor darling who must bear with them does not enjoy gamboling on the beach. She ducks under and stays there. When she emerges from the sparkling waves she wraps herself in her bathing robe and wishes she were a skinny slimp.

All she needs is will power for figure reform. She must deny herself some of the good things of the table no matter how much her appetite craves them. She must get a certain amount of exercise. No need of buckling down to strenuous routines; they aren't necessary. She has been feeding her fat cells and if she stops doing that they'll starve to death.

The plumpish lady can eat heartily if she slows up on fats, sweets and starches. She should lessen the intake of cream, butter olive oil, pastries, ice cream, potatoes, white bread, take tea and coffee clear. Not much of a hardship after she gets used to it. The rewards are worth the sacrifice. Reducing should go on slowly, so the tissues of the face won't soften. Take off six or seven pounds a month and there will be no fatigue. A woman will feel better, more like swinging the world around by the tail.

Exercises that tighten the muscles of the midsection are on the daily schedule. Fat seems to be looking for a central location. It selects the tummy, hips or thighs.

Fifteen minutes each day should be devoted to the following exercises: before beginning them take careful measurements. Lose half an inch and you'll feel encouraged.

Squat and spread the feet far apart, place the hands on the hip Lower the body, sending the knees far out at the sides; lift the body slowly. Keep on the toes all the time. Or as long as you can.

Lie on the floor with the head against the wall. Lift the legs, without bending the knees, until you touch the wall with your toes.

Stand with feet five inches apart. Hold the hands out at the sides in a line with the shoulders. Touch the floor with one hand, then with the other.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, June 26.

The astral auguries are for a particularly lively and enterprising day, with much stirring of an entirely unforeseen nature. There may be sudden occurrences calling for a change of plans, objectives and possibly scenes of operation. While these arrangements should culminate in unlooked-for advantage, with innovation and audacity proving the test of speculation or adventure, yet there is need for vigilance against snares, intrigue or other undercover tactics. There should be much felicity in intimate affiliations.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of surprises and unpredictable events, affecting all manner of new experiences in business as well as private life. Opportunity and lure in the direction of new pastures may result in reorientation of the life and its purpose, all to culminate in progress, surprising fulfillments with perhaps romance and adventure. But in all there is a menace from duplicity, intrigue and deep-laid schemes to be alert to, since they are viciously undermining.

A child born on this day may be progressive, enterprising, romantic and adventurous, with a strong bent toward the new, untried and experimental both in intellectual and sound business projects.

THE BEST DO THE WORST

DO EXPERTS make the same kind of mistakes as ordinary players? Indeed they do — and how. They may not do it as often, but sometimes they do go so completely haywire that it is hard to understand how they could do so well the rest of the time. Some of their slips are so ludicrous, upon rare occasions, that it almost seems they were trying to think up the worst possible bids and plays, and using their brilliancy to devise worse ones than could be thought up by less gifted mortals.

Almost everybody bid this deal to 3-No Trumps, in the duplicate where it was dealt, none of them failing to make it, and some getting overtricks. The bidding given was at the table where the two pairs considered the strongest in the competition happened to meet. Only one other pair got into the same childish contract, and they made exactly 2-Spades, whereas an almost impossibly bad play on the defense by West here enabled South to get an overtrick.

West led the singleton of his partner's diamonds. The K won, followed by the A and a ruff of the 2. The club 3 was won by the A, then the spade Q finessed. A second club to the A was followed by the 2, ruffed in the South. The spade A was laid down, then another spade settled the outstanding ones, East winning. He led back a diamond to the J. South cashed his last spade, the J, then with two cards left led his heart 8.

West saw the heart Q and club J in dummy. Can you believe it? He played his J from the heart A-J, letting dummy's Q win and, of course, the club. Even if, as he said he thought, East had the heart K, his right play was the A. So cheer up, neophytes. Any opponents you meet have their human lapses, too, as bad as your own.

Read Stories To Young Child

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

● At home and school, story reading is gradually displacing story telling. Time was, when great emphasis was placed on story telling in the training of children's librarians and teachers of kindergarten and primary children. Twenty-five years ago, story reading was never mentioned in pedagogical literature. Today, reading to babies and young children is given a rapidly growing place both in theory and practice.

So far as I can ascertain, I put in print the first plea in the United States for story reading in preference to story telling, especially in the home. It appeared in my book, "The Learner and His Attitude," 1925. Continually, since then, I have in various books, magazine articles and in this column, as well as from the public platform, been hammering on the same idea. Perhaps I have had a little share in the present trend toward reading to young children.

Either reading or telling stories to the young child stimulates his imgaination, cultivates habits of sustained attention (concentration) and affords the youngsters a vast deal of knowledge, pleasure and ease of expression. While I have always believed that story-telling has great value, it hardly compares in worth, especially in the home, to story reading.

Reading to the baby and young child at home is superior to telling stories to him, as a rule, because:

1. The baby will listen at an earlier age to materials read from a page which illustrates this material than to what is told to him. Unawares, he will absorb what he hears as he looks at a picture related to it. Gradually, he will learn to listen without the aid of the picture.

2. At best, only a few babies and children can have stories told to them. Few adults can tell stories well. Few even suppose they can at all. Almost any parent, grandparent, maid, other adult or older child can read to the little tyke. Virtually every baby and young child may be read to.

3. Since any member of the family may read to the baby and young child, see how much wider is the family companionship possible. See how the nervous, weary mother might be relieved when the father or another family member reads to the baby.

4. A story read from a well-selected source has superior language, as a rule, to the story told and the child hears the same words, phrases and sentences over and over in exactly the same way. School children who had been read to from early baby-hood, at home, excel in oral English.

Merely tell stories to the baby and young child and he associates the story with you, its source. Read to him, and he connects the story with the book as the origin. You make him long for the time when he can read from the book alone. Most of his school learning will be from reading books.

As we read to the baby and young child, the book which has his favorite stories becomes a kind of precious personality. He handles it with affectionate care.

I have witnessed a good deal of story reading to young children at school in various parts of the United States. During public forums with kindergarten and primary teachers in places as widely separated as Salt Lake City, Nashville and Detroit, recently, I have learned of story reading at school. Furthermore, I have witnessed some very effective reading by teachers to children in the upper elementary grades, junior and senior high school.

If you would like to receive a list of books for reading to the baby and young child, write me at 235 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

CHAPTER IX

When he finished the song, he stared at her a long while. Then he spoke again.

"Are you happy in Arizona, little New York girl?"

"Very happy tonight, thank you, sir!"

"Been homesick any? For your family and all?"

'There's only Jack, my brother. And I don't know where he is. He's—"

'Oh, yes. You told me. But your friends?"

"I'm making friends here. Of course I miss New York, but as a temporary home I think this grand. You are all so nice to me!"

"Rosemary."

"Yes, Bob?"

"It's so easy to be nice to you! So easy and delightful!" He spoke gently, putting his big hand over hers against the rock.

"That's sweet," she whispered.

They didn't talk much more because the air was too chilly. But when Bob took her home, bidding her good night at the huge log trading post, she went upstairs to her new quarters and sat down in a positive glow. A happy girlish glow, as if she were nearer sixteen than twenty-six.

So easy and delightful to be nice to you! Gee, he had been handsome in that moment! Handsome and—and romantic, I guess.

She sat in her great chair with the lambskin, her knees up under her chin hugged there by her arms, staring out her west window into the night. Those same moon-drenched clouds were visible, milling now like sheep in the dark sky-corral. She wasn't conscious of them, though. She was dreaming, daydreaming, heartdreaming. She sat there a long while, her lower lip tucked in a happy sort of half-smile. Finally she stirred.

"Gee-e-e-e-e-e!" she whispered, in sheer ecstasy.

Archibald Montgomery, Ph. D., who last evening had distinquished himself in a really significant address and had been applauded by his 2,000 hearers in mass at the open air theatre and later in private, this morning turned his car off the highway and pulled up alongside Rosemary's trading post. Rosemary herself hastened out to greet him.

"Hi, Monty!" she smiled and spoke gaily. "Gee, but you were great last night! Have you got the big head this morning?

"Oh I say—!"

She laughed out loud then. "Come on in and help me clerk. I've been busy since four a. m.—honest! At four o'clock Cissy growled—Cissy is awfully furocious, Monty—and when I awoke somebody was knocking. It was a carful of tourists wanting lodging. Imagine!"

"Lodging?"

"Yes. Said they were tired, and wanted to sleep until noon or so. Of course I hadn't a room for them."

"Um. I see . . . I see. Ah, Rosemary?"

"Hmmm?"

"We must supply the demand."

"Hunh?"

"I say we must—you must supply rooms. As a matter of fact, my dear, I have given it some thought already. I have been investigating the highway in both directions, and you are in a pecularily advantageous position. With a small hotel, or say a group of auto cabins of inexpensive design, you could attract many tourists."

"Oh! Oh Monty, do you think so?"

"I do."

"Oh! But—goodness, Monty! I haven't much money. You told me I mustn't cut the store's operating capital down, or something. And cabins would be—"

"Of course, to be sure! But you have assets. You can borrow money to build the cabins."

"Go into debt? Whoever would lend me money?"

"My dear Rosemary, there are banks. Gredit is the lifeblood of business. And, ah—if I may be so presumptuous, I was thinking possibly that I might advance a little myself—as an investment. I have about three thousand saved, and while it is a small sum in a business way, I could offer it at attractive interest. Or if you did not wish to assume any risk, perhaps I might lease ground space adjoining the store and erect the cabins myself. But as your friend I recommend that you erect them and in time own them."

"Oh, Monty, you really are my friend, aren't you!" She said it in true gratitude, looking directly at him and speaking very seriously. "I don't know what I should do without you. Honest, I don't. When I fished you out of the water I never dreamed you could be so nice."

"Oh I say——!" When Rosemary got personal Monty invariably blushed in confusion. But she wasn't teasing now, he perceived.

"Please come in and tell me how to go about it. How to get the loan, the papers and everything. And goodness, Monty, you'll have to boss it all for me. I—of course I must pay you for that. For all this."

"Indeed not! It is a pleasu——"

"Indeed yes, Monty! I am not wholly stupid. I don't know anything about running a store, but I did work in a law office, remember. People get paid for helping other people in business, and that's right and fair even among friends. If you object, Monty, I shall hate you, so there."

* * *

You can't argue with that kind of girl. In truth, you can't argue with any pretty girl, Dr. Montgomery was to learn. Rosemary was lovely this morning, and he felt both ill at ease and exalted in her and his summer plans around her, he who had come west for a leisurely summer of rest and study in the field of archeology ruins, but he frankly admitted now that he was not primarily interested in them. Some more fundamental urge seemed to distract him.
